Gas Company Submits New Rate Ordinance

$42,000 SAVINGS OVER SIX-YEAR PERIOD PLEDGED

District Manager Informs Council Schedule Would Be Effective At Once

EIGHT YEARS COVERED

Last Two Would Be Under Same Figures Being Paid At Present Time

A gas rate ordinance, which Ohio Fuel Gas Company officials say will save Circleville customers more than $10,000 the first year, was proposed to Councilmen at their meeting Wednesday night.

Councilmen declined to suspend the three-reading clause and vote on the ordinance, stating that they believed the public should be given an opportunity to consider the issue before a vote was taken.

Frank Phillips of Athens, district manager of the Gas Company, told the council that due to the present war threat and taxation burden thrust on the public, he felt that it was only right that the company should come to "honorable measures" with gas consumers, even though the present gas contract does not expire for 16 months.

The proposed eight-year contract would save the 2,000 Circleville consumers nearly $42,000, he said, and would become effective within 30 days after its passage by council. Under the new contract would amount to $10,320 each year for the first three years, and $3,600 each year for the next three years, making a total savings of $41,760.

Rates Disclosed

Rates for the first three years would be as follows: 20 cents for each 100 cubic feet for the first 500 cubic feet, 5 1/2 cents for each 100 cubic feet for the next 5,000 cubic feet and 5 cents for each 100 cubic feet for all over 5,000 cubic feet.

During the next three years of the contract they would be 20 cents for each 100 cubic feet for the first 500 cubic feet, 6 cents for each 100 cubic feet for the next 4,500 feet, 5 1/2 cents for each 100 cubic feet for the next 5,000 cubic feet, and 5 cents for each 100 cubic feet for all over 10,000 cubic feet.

For the last two years, the rates would be the same as they are at the present time. Present rates, which will expire in November, 1941, are 20 cents for each 100 cubic feet for the first 500 cubic feet, 7 cents for each 100 cubic feet for the next 1,500 cubic feet, 6 cents for each 100 cubic feet for the next 3,000 cubic feet, 5 1/2 cents for each 100 cubic feet for the next 5,000 cubic feet, and 5 cents for each 100 cubic feet for all over 10,000 cubic feet.

Under the proposed contract, a minimum monthly bill would be $1 and a delayed payment charge of 5 percent, to be no less than 10 cents, would be added to the charge if not paid within 10 days after the bill for the monthly reading period had been issued. These terms are the same as those contained in the present gas contract.

Isolationists To Battle On Belief Conscription Act "Hitlerized" Method

WASHINGTON, August 8 — Showing concern over the bitter debate that has accompanied vital sections of the defense program, senate administration leaders today moved to speed authorization to the President to mobilize the National Guard, and make way for action on the equally controversial military conscription bill.

Majority Leader Barkley wants the senate to agree to start voting on amendments and the bill late today. Sen. Adams (D) Colo., foe of the legislation, blocked such a move yesterday.

Opponents of the military conscription bill, which would make 12,000,000 men between 21 and 31 liable for a year's military training, met secretly in Sen. Norris' office and organized for their battle. Those attending included Sens. Johnson (D) Colo.; Nye (R) N. D.; LaFollette (P) Wis.; Wheeler (D) Mont.; Walsh (D) Mass., chairman of the senate naval affairs committee, and Norris (I-R) Neb.

Agreements were made for speaking time in the senate accompanying floor strategy. The opposition senators will base their arguments on the minority report of the senate military affairs committee, which said peacetime conscription is a "Hitlerized method." (Continued on Page Eight)

FARLEY LEAVES POSTOFFICE JOB END OF AUGUST

HYDE PARK, N. Y., August 8 —James A. Farley today resigned, effective August 31, as postmaster general of the United States.

In a letter accepting the resignation of the man who handled his two victorious campaigns, President Roosevelt said that Farley would be greatly missed.

Farley's letter of resignation made no mention of future political plans. The retiring national chairman of the Democratic party took occasion, however, to cite the record of the Postoffice Department under his administration, its businesslike progress and the firm standing on which it now rests.

Although Farley is giving up both the national chairmanship and his cabinet post, he is retaining the Democratic state chairmanship and will direct the campaign to keep the big New York electoral vote in the Democratic column this fall.

Farley told reporters today that he had made definite arrangements for his future in private business. That future is expected to include not only the leadership of the world's champion New York Yankees baseball club, but possibly other ventures into the business field.

Airline Stewardess Found Unconscious; Mystery Of Swallowed Key Studied

F. B. I. To Question Girl, 24, About Strange Case

NASHVILLE, Tenn., August 8 —Miss Rosemary Griffith, 24-year-old stewardess who was found unconscious aboard the American Airlines flagship, Tennessee, near Nashville last night, recovered consciousness this morning, but authorities refused to permit anyone to speak to her.

They also declined to say whether or not she had as yet made any statement as to what had happened, but it was reported that agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation planned to question her during the day.

The girl was found unconscious about 8:30 p. m. in the ear of the plane, near the mail compartment, as the air liner winged its way toward Nashville from Washington. Immediately on landing of the plane at Nashville at 9:05 p. m. the girl was rushed to St. Thomas Hospital where X-rays revealed she had swallowed the key to the mail compartment.

Whether she swallowed the key to protect the mail compartment or accidentally swallowed it could not be learned. Indications were, however, the mail compartment had not been tampered with.

When found, Miss Griffith's face was scratched and her stockings were torn. It was known that she had been ill and it was reported authorities were seeking to determine whether she had fainted and had been rolled about on the floor by motion of the ship or had been injured in some other manner.

Hard-Hitting R. A. F. Aces Repeatedly Damaging Industrial Center

LONDON, August 8 —Throwing at least 120 war planes into action, Nazi Germany launched a "test blitzkrieg" against the British Isles today coincident with disclosure that Britain is now using her own "stuka" dive bombers against German bases.

By International News Service
Royal Air Force planes—including for the first time England's own "Stuka" dive bombers—waged bitter battles over England, the Channel, Germany and Norway today.

The admiralty announced that at least nine Nazi warplanes had been shot down by defending patrol planes and anti-aircraft guns.

Meanwhile, the official communiques said, planes of the fleet air arm adopted Nazi tactics in raids on a Norwegian oil depot.

Descending on their targets in whistling dives, the bombers were said to have blown up the largest tank at Dolvik, five miles south of Bergen. A second tank was badly damaged and the Dolvik jetty was left in flames.

British air might also struck at the Italian offensive in Africa. The R.A.F. lashed out at Bardia, chief jumping off place for Italy's threat to the lifeline of the British Empire — the key ports of Alexandria, Cairo and the Suez Canal.

Fighting to check the Fascist advance which already controls one port on the Gulf of Aden, British planes bombed the Bardia Harbor and a submarine base at Massawa.

In the battle over Britain authorities counted up their losses due to German raids and reported that damages were not serious.

They said the most seriously injured persons were a group of women walking on a country road when a Nazi raider dropped a load of bombs nearby.

White Powder Examined
British chemists, meanwhile, examined a white powder found in the streets of one English town after a German raider had passed overhead, apparently suspecting it might yield a clue to a new German weapon.

Analysis demonstrated, however, that the powder was a (Continued on Page Eight)

Italians Make Gains in East Africa

CAIRO, August 8 — Planes of the British Royal Air Force took the offensive today in an effort to break up Italy's onslaught against "lifelines" of the Empire.

With the Italians already in control of one port on the Gulf of Aden and fifty miles deep into British East African territory, the R.A.F. lashed out at Bardia, chief jumping off place for Italy's threat to Alexandria, Cairo and the Suez Canal.

Direct hits on shipping in the harbor and shorehouses were recorded. In addition, the R.A.F. bombed Italian submarine bases at Massawa, scoring a hit on one naval vessel at the quay and a submarine. One British flying boat engaged in reconnaissance at Tobruk was shot down.

Latest advices indicated the mechanized Italian troops were still hammering against bitter resistance in a three-pronged drive against Berbera, seaport capital of the British protectorate.

While fierce fighting progressed on the torrid desert, the British East African high command announced that the Italians, aided by tanks and strafing planes, occupied the port of Zeilah, Hargeisa and Odeina early this week but at heavy cost of lives and material.

Zeilah on the Somali Coast is about 100 miles northwest of Berbera and 75 miles southeast of the French Somali seaport of Djibouti, now controlled by the Italians. Hargeisa is the most important inland community in British Somaliland.

Two Italian battalions occupied the undefended port of Zeilah, it was authoritatively revealed. The British, it was said, could not afford to stretch their communications to meet the Italian attack.

It is now thought likely that the Italians will expand their operations in this manner:

1—Drive eastward along the Mediterranean toward Alexandria and Cairo, with the spearhead fanning out as it reaches the Nile Delta.

2—Concerted drives from Eritrea and Ethiopia into the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan to smash Kharطوم and the Nile communication centers.

3—Purely local engagements along the Kenya frontier to keep South African troops engaged until Egypt falls.

British troops will stand and fight on the hill range around Berbera if the Italians succeed in covering the almost impassable

150-mile road through Somaliland with their mechanized equipment. "The important thing is to defeat the enemy," a spokesman said. "They should be beaten at Berbera."

Italian operations will be hindered by the forthcoming monsoon, which will rage until the middle of September. Two other divisions of Fascist troops were reported ready on the northeastern Libyan coast for a second and more extensive drive against Egypt and the Suez Canal.

The Cairo communique, which admitted Italian occupation of the three Somaliland towns, said an Italian bombing raid on the Holy Land naval base of Haifa was a failure.

A gas rate ordinance, which Ohio Fuel Gas Company officials say will save Circleville customers more than $10,000 the first year, was proposed to Councilmen at their meeting Wednesday night.

Councilmen declined to suspend the three-reading clause and vote on the ordinance, stating that they believed the public should be given an opportunity to consider the issue before a vote was taken.

Frank Phillips of Athens, district manager of the Gas Company, told the council that due to the present war threat and taxation burden thrust on the public, he felt that it was only right that the company should come to "honorable measures" with gas consumers, even though the present gas contract does not expire for 16 months.

The proposed eight-year contract would save the 2,000 Circleville consumers nearly $42,000, he said, and would become effective within 30 days after its passage by council. He pointed out that savings under the new contract would amount to $10,320 each year for the first three years, and $3,600
each year for the next three years, making a total savings of $41,760.

Rates Disclosed
Rates for the first three years would be as follows: 20 cents for each 100 cubic feet for the first 500 cubic feet, 5 1/2 cents for each cubic foot for the next 4,500 cu-

During the next three years of the contract they would be 20 cents for each 100 cubic feet for the first 500 cubic feet, 6 cents for each 100 cubic feet for the next 4,500 feet, 5 1/2 cents for each 100 cubic feet for the next 5,000 cubic feet, and 5 cents for each 100 cubic feet for all over 10,000 cubic feet.

For the last two years, the rates would be the same as they are at the present time. Present rates, which will expire in November, 1941, are 20 cents for each 100 cubic feet for the first 500 cubic feet, 7 cents for each 100 cubic feet for the next 1,500 cubic feet, 6 cents for each 100 cubic feet for the next 3,000 cubic feet, 5 1/2 cents for each 100 cubic feet for the next 5,000 cubic feet, and 5 cents for each 100 cubic feet for all over 10,000 cubic feet.

Under the proposed contract, a minimum monthly bill would be $1 and a delayed payment charge of 5 percent, to be no less than 10 cents, would be added to the charge if not paid within 10 days after the bill for the monthly

Descending on their targets in whistling dives, the bombers were said to have blown up the largest tank at Dolvik, five miles south of Bergen. A second tank was badly damaged and the Dolvik jetty was left in flames.

British air might also struck at the Italian offensive in Africa. The R.A.F. lashed out at Bardia, chief jumping off place for Italy's threat to the lifeline of the British Empire — the key ports of Alexandria, Cairo and the Suez Canal.

Fighting to check the Fascist advance which already controls one port on the Gulf of Aden, British planes bombed the Bardia Harbor and a submarine base at Massawa.

In the battle over Britain authorities counted up their losses due to German raids and reported that damages were not serious.

They said the most seriously injured persons were a group of women walking on a country road when a Nazi raider dropped a load of bombs nearby.

White Powder Examined
British chemists, meanwhile, examined a white powder found in the streets of one English town after a German raider had passed overhead, apparently suspecting it might yield a clue to a new German weapon.

Analysis demonstrated, however, that the powder was a

Italians Make Gains in East Africa

CAIRO, August 8 — Planes of the British Royal Air Force took the offensive today in an effort to break up Italy's onslaught against "lifelines" of the Empire.

With the Italians already in control of one port on the Gulf of Aden and fifty miles deep into British East African territory, the R.A.F. lashed out at Bardia, chief jumping off place for Italy's threat to Alexandria, Cairo and the Suez Canal.

Direct hits on shipping in the harbor and storehouses were recorded. In addition, the R.A.F. bombed Italian submarine bases at Massawa, scoring a hit on one naval vessel at the quay and a submarine. One British flying boat engaged in reconnaissance at Tobruk was shot down.

Latest advices indicated the mechanized Italian troops were still hammering against bitter resistance in a three-pronged drive against Berbera, seaport capital of the British protectorate.

While fierce fighting progressed on the torrid desert, the British East African high command announced that the Italians, aided by tanks and straining planes, occupied the port of Zella, Hargeisa and Odeveina early this week but at heavy cost of lives and material.

Zella on the Somaliland Coast is about 100 miles northwest of Berbera and 75 miles southeast of the French Somaliland seaport of Djibouti, now controlled by the Italians. Hargeisa is the most important inland community in British Somaliland.

Two Italian battalions occupied the undefended port of Zella, it was authoritatively revealed. The British, it was said, could not afford to stretch their communications to meet the Italian attack.

It is now thought likely that the Italians will expand their operations in this manner:

1—Drive eastward along the Mediterranean toward Alexandria and Cairo, with the spearhead fanning out as it reaches the Nile Delta.

2—Concerted drives from Eritrea and Ethiopia into the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan to smash Khar-toum and the Nile communication centers.

3—Purely local engagements along the Kenya frontier to keep South African troops engaged until Egypt falls.

British troops will stand and fight on the hill range around Berbera if the Italians succeed in covering the almost impassable 150-mile road through Somaliland with their mechanized equipment.

"The important thing is to defeat the enemy," a spokesman said. "They should be beaten at Berbera."

Italian operations will be hindered by the forthcoming monsoon, which will rage until the middle of September.

Two other divisions of Fascist troops were reported ready on the northeastern Libyan coast for a second and more extensive drive against Egypt and the Suez Canal.

The Cairo communique, which admitted Italian occupation of the three Somaliland towns, said an Italian bombing raid on the Holy Land naval base of Haifa was a failure.

PRICE OF CORN MOVES UP WITH MOISTURE LACK

Observers At Chicago Say Weather Report Alarms Many Traders

R/G DISTRICT MENACED

Red Rust Hits Argentina Wheat, Earliest Date Ever Known

Reports of serious drought damage to the crop in several mid-western states Thursday hoisted corn prices sharply on the Chicago market.

The official weekly weather report, which some trade observers called "alarming," said rain was needed badly in practically all portions of the corn belt. Even in Iowa where recent good rains were thought to have fallen in time to prevent injury, the report indicated that about one fourth of the crop in some areas had suffered permanent damage.

Born upward in a late rush by this report, corn Wednesday finished at near the day's top levels and 1 to 1 1/2 cents higher than Tuesday's finish; wheat unchanged to 1/4 cent up; oats 1/4 to 1/2 cent advanced, rye up 1/4 to 1/2 cent, and provision 17 to 29 cents lower.

Early seeded corn in Nebraska and Kansas was reported to have suffered the greatest damage. Up-land corn in the Ohio River valley was said to be faring badly and tasselings short. Most areas from Western Nebraska southward through Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas, were suffering from drought conditions which had reached serious proportions. Stock water was scarce, many wells were failing and pastures were drying up.

Corn had started off briskly enough on reports of clear dry weather over the entire belt, but weakness of wheat and other grains had tempered the advance. The early rise was 1/4 cent a bushel in September futures, which were purchased freely by holders of cash corn. The deferred deliveries were resistant.

Trade was in the doldrums until the government report was released and then prices advanced 1/2 cent a bushel. The official forecast was for some rain in northwestern sections of the corn belt, but sections where drought prevailed were told that clear and warmer weather was forthcoming. Wheat moved up fractionally early and again at the close, chiefly on the strength in corn. There was little in the news to encourage the trade. A report from the Argentina said red rust had been noted in wheat growing in Northern Argentina, the earliest date at which rust had ever been seen.

Other grains followed wheat rather than corn and showed but minor changes.

RICHARD Arlen and Kathryn Adams are two of the stars featured in "Black Diamonds," a screenplay which combines perilous action with romance and comedy at the Grand Theatre. The story is told in a small coal mining town where Arlen, as an energetic young newspaper reporter, fights against the lack of modern safety devices required by state law. How he uses his wits to end the operation of a "death trap mine," and win the love of a beautiful girl, is said to keep the action and suspense at high pitch until the final scene. Kathryn Adams, talented screen newcomer, and Mary Treen, popular comedienne, share romantic honors in the film. Andy Devine has every chance to display his versatility as a comedian. Other favorites in the cast include Paul Fix, Pat Flaherty, Maude Allen, Jim Morton and Cliff Clark.

Balanced Meals Planned For National Guardsmen

FAYETTE BOARD TO START PROBE OF BOND ISSUE

Irregularities In Ballot Of West Holland To Be Studied This Week

NEFFNER TAKES ACTION

Official Recounts Fail To Bring Any Changes In Voting Outcome

Alleged irregularities in the vote of the West Holland precinct in its ballot for a waterworks project to be constructed in New Holland will be investigated this week or early next week, Horace C. Ireland, chairman of the Fayette County board of elections, said Thursday.

The investigation was ordered by George Neffner, secretary of state, following several complaints that the election was irregular.

The bond issue was approved by a small margin, and recounts of the New Holland precincts by Fayette and Pickaway County boards of election failed to alter the result of the balloting.

Neffner's office declared that complaints made to it were that a number of West Holland precinct ballots were changed after they had been cast.

None of the alleged irregularity the state secretary said, was in the Pickaway County precinct of New Holland, all complaints coming from the West Holland district which lies in Fayette County.

In the meantime New Hollanders supporting the waterworks drive are gradually cutting through all read tape that precedes actual work on the program.

For Thursday, August 8

A MODERATELY active and successful state of affairs is read from interesting astral influences. The mind will vibrate to a high pitch of novelty and ingenuity, with the probability in which employers or those of financial influence will be disposed to take a generous hand. Nevertheless, there are some indications of disappointment, loss or reversals. And a tendency to be lavish in expenditures should be subdued. Taking a bold chance might prove hazardous.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a moderately successful year if they will be determined about big business coups, either in speculation or perilous investments. No time for gambling, although the mind will be strongly bent in the direction of audacious spending, especially in projects of novelty or boldly constructive efforts or inventions.

Aviation Schools Get Set To Train Many More Men For Added Plane Building

The aviation industry will need thousands of experienced men to help design and build the vastly expanded United States air force.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., August 8—

"Help Wanted Male: Several thousand experienced men needed to help design, build and fly the 50,000 planes ordered by the government of these United States. Apply to the aviation industry, trained and ready to go to work."

That advertisement hasn't appeared in the papers yet, but it may any day now. With hard-pressed European belligerents begging for more and more planes, the aircraft manufacturers find themselves smack dab in the middle of their greatest boom. And since President Roosevelt voiced his ringing plea for a vast expansion of the air defenses of the United States, the industry has been headed straight for the stratosphere.

Airplane factories are working at top speed now. It is only a matter of days or weeks before every manufacturing plant in the country will be operating on a 24-hour schedule. That sort of program means a demand for more men—trained men. And the aviation schools of the country approved by the Civil Aeronautics Authority have hitched up their hypothetical pants, tightened their belts and plunged into the task of providing men equipped to do the job at hand.

No Man Shortage

That is not an easy assignment. There is no shortage of willing young men, true. Probably there is no career more appealing to the youth of America than aviation. Last year when the Civil Aeronautics Authority announced that 10,000 young men would be taught to fly in 1940, the 437 colleges and 75 non-college stations which teach some phase of aviation were swamped with more than 50,000 applicants. One university received 1,200 applications for a quota of 30 places.

It is not as simple as that, however. Aviation in all of its branches requires a highly technical knowledge. Training of a specialized sort is necessary to equip a young man for even the most rudimentary jobs in an airplane factory. And training takes time.

With 60 percent of all of the larger planes manufactured in this country produced in factories in Los Angeles County, southern California will bear the brunt of the task of supplying the industry with new blood. Last year more than 20,000 young men were graduated from some 16 aviation training schools in Los Angeles. This year will probably see that number doubled. Smelling the opportunities in aviation, both in the engineering end and flying, hundreds of young men are registering with the schools for training courses. Even the University of Southern California has recognized the trend and June 15 saw a pilot's training program inaugurated there under the direction of Lieutenant Commander D. C. Watson, U. S. N., retired.

The aviation industry reports a definite shortage of skilled craftsmen, especially in the machinist and toolmaking trades. For some jobs in this field, new men can be trained in a comparatively short time.

To equip men for jobs of that type, there are short courses of training, ranging from six weeks to four months. The better schools, approved by the Civil Aeronautics Authority, require the longer period. There are schools that turn out "graduates" in less time, but the industry as a whole frowns upon slap-dash training of its men.

The California Flyers, one of the better schools in Los Angeles County, offers a four-month "production mechanics" course which provides the student with a basic background in tools and tool processing, blue print reading, ferrous and non-ferrous metals, heat treatment, layout and template making, drilling and reaming, riveting, welding, brazing and soldering, assembly and other such fundamentals. They offer, too, a "master mechanics" course which requires a year of study and embraces all that the shorter course offers, plus a study of aircraft structure, engines, civil air regulations, instruments, parachutes and radio.

That kind of training equips the graduate to handle almost any construction job in an aircraft factory or a maintenance position on an airport or airline.

Many Designers Necessary

Before they can be built, airplanes have to be designed. Hundreds of individual drawings must be made before even the smallest plane can be placed in production. It is estimated that 12 percent of the personnel of an aircraft factory is made up of engineers and draftsmen. The schools offer courses ranging from a four-month study of drafting to aeronautical engineering courses re-

EZRA FROM NASHVILLE

The Uncle Ezra program for Saturday, at 9:00 p. m. NBC-Red will originate from Nashville, Tenn., instead of from Chicago. Reason? The program comes from Nashville to tie-in with the world premiere of Paramount's picture, "Comin' Round the Mountain," which features Bob Burns and Uncle Ezra. In addition to the cast, one of the valuable travellers from Chicago to Nashville will be the old-fashioned music box that plays "The Bees Are In The Hive." Included in the group making the trip to the Southern city will be Pat Barrett, Fran Allison, Cliff Soubier, Fort Pearson, and producer Bruce Kannon. Nashville is putting on its best bib and tucker for this unusual event.

BLONDIE MENAGERIE

Like all kids, Baby Dumpling is quivering from 14 months to two years.

In addition to the thousands of young men seeking training in production and engineering, another large group is learning to fly. This, however, costs more money and takes longer to accomplish than preparation for jobs in the construction end. The shortest approved course in flying must include 35 hours of flying, which qualifies for a private license. Such a license permits the pilot to fly anywhere he likes, carrying friends, but prohibits his earning any money from his flying.

A commercial license requires 200 flying hours, and involves a two-year course of study at a cost of from $2,000 to $4,000. And while a man with 200 flying hours may carry passengers legally, many additional hours are necessary to equip him for an important job.

The cost of a pilot's training comes high, but thousands of young men are finding the money somehow to prepare themselves. And it's a safe bet that there'll be young men graduated into the service of flying almost as fast as the manufacturers can turn out the planes. Young America has sprouted wings and is taking to the air!

crazy about frogs, turtles, and other fauna. He acquires various pets, on the Blondie program, Monday, at 6:30 p. m. and is having a heck of a good time when the neighborhood is thrown into turmoil by weird cries. It eventually develops that Baby has captured a Howler Monkey, or some such beast, which in the pay-off turns out to be very valuable and baby collects the reward, saving the Bumsteads from some financial straits.

RADIO BRIEFS

With the beginning of a new "Parker Family" series, size of the orchestra under direction of Elliott Jacoby has been doubled.

Bob Crosby's first Dixieland Music Shop broadcast from Catalina Island's Avalon Casino will be Thursday. Crosby opens there August 11.

Jay Jostyn, radio's "Mr. District Attorney," who is also featured in "The Parker Family," will be written out of the latter show for several weeks so that he can have week-end vacations.

Walter Gross, pianist and band-leader, who was with Andre Kostelanetz on the latter's last radio series, has joined Ray Block's orchestra on the Tuesday night "Johnny Presents" programs.

The New York Philharmonic concerts from Lewisohn Stadium end over CBS Wednesday.

Betty Garde, star of "My Son and I," has turned composer. Her newest effort is "I Found a Song." She'll probably do it on the program if the scripter can fit it in.

Andrew S. Telep, editor of a Mayfield, Pennsylvania paper, will be the armchair detective on "Elly Queen" Sunday.

SUITS AGAINST COLUMBUS FOR POLLUTION SETTLED

Damage actions totalling $46,500 of Pickaway and Franklin County residents against the city of Columbus as a result of sewage pollution from the Scioto River have been settled in Common Pleas court for $2,080. Entries approving the settlements were approved by Judge Edward C. Turner.

J. I. Smith, Jr., Phil E. Smith and Mrs. Nellie R. Smith of Circleville and Brice Young of Ashville will receive $760; F. Annabelle and Mada M. Barch of Jackson Township will be given $550. Other settlements include David Davis, Shadeville, $10; Dorothy P. Smith, Bennett Shofstall and Eleanor West, Pickaway County, $760.

President Thomas Jefferson was a violinist of some skill, playing for "sympathetic listeners" in his home, accompanied by his elder daughter on the harpsichord.

A LOAN OF $400 saved a Life....

FAYETTE BOARD TO START PROBE OF BOND ISSUE

Irregularities In Ballot Of West Holland To Be Studied This Week

NEFFNER TAKES ACTION

Official Recounts Fail To Bring Any Changes In Voting Outcome

Alleged irregularities in the vote of the West Holland precinct in its ballot for a waterworks project to be constructed in New Holland will be investigated this week or early next week, Horace C. Ireland, chairman of the Fayette County board of elections, said Thursday.

The investigation was ordered by George Neffner, secretary of state, following several complaints that the election was irregular.

The bond issue was approved by a small margin, and recounts of the New Holland precincts by Fayette and Pickaway County boards of election failed to alter the result of the balloting.

Neffner's office declared that complaints made to it were that a number of West Holland precinct ballots were changed after they had been cast.

None of the alleged irregularity the state secretary said, was in the Pickaway County precinct of New Holland, all complaints coming from the West Holland district which lies in Fayette County.

In the meantime New Hollanders supporting the waterworks drive are gradually cutting through all read tape that precedes actual work on the program.

STARS SAY—

For Thursday, August 8

A MODERATELY active and successful state of affairs is read from interesting astral influences. The mind will vibrate to a high pitch of novelty and ingenuity, with the probability in which employers or those of financial influence will be disposed to take a generous hand. Nevertheless, there are some indications of disappointment, loss or reversals. And a tendency to be lavish in expenditures should be subdued. Taking a bold chance might prove hazardous.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a moderately successful year if they will be determined about big business coups, either in speculation or perilous investments. No time for gambling, although the mind will be strongly bent in the direction of audacious spending, especially in projects of novelty or boldly constructive efforts or inventions.

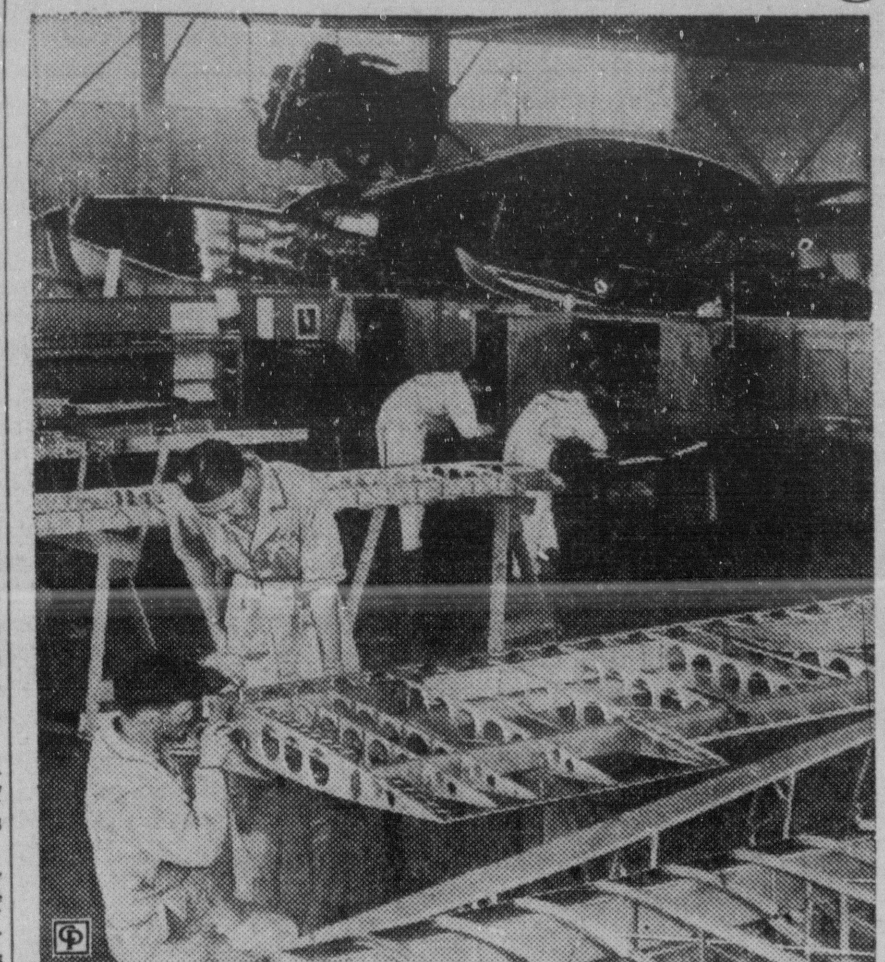

A child born on this day may have unusual mental ability, especially in the direction of bold and thrilling new adventures. It may be disposed to over-enthusiasm in its discoveries and should have some training in thrift.

Three Men Meet At Hyde Park To Outline Campaign For November Balloting

FLYNN IN WASHINGTON

Farm Secretary May Await Wilkie, McNary Speeches Before Own Address

HYDE PARK, N. Y., August 8.—Definite plans for President Roosevelt's home-stretch drive to win a third term election against Republican Nominee Wendell Wilkie were in the making today as Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace came to Hyde Park for a strategy conference with his running mate.

Present in advance at the Roosevelt Hudson Valley home was Secretary of Commerce Harry Hopkins, who manipulated pre-convention maneuvers at the Chicago Democratic convention for the President and who seems destined to play an important, though backstage role in the current campaign.

This afternoon, the three men planned to sit at their ease on the spacious porch of the Hyde Park house and debate methods of bringing victory to the Democratic ticket again.

Edward J. Flynn, who will take over the Democratic national chairmanship from James A. Farley on August 17, was not to be present. Flynn was in Washington conferring with other New Deal leaders on the manner in which he will manage the Roosevelt-Wallace campaign.

Wallace May Wait
An immediate decision to be made related to the date of Wallace's formal acceptance of the vice-presidential nomination. Observers believe he would wait until August 28 or 29 because Wilkie's Elwood, Ind., ceremonies fall on August 17 and Senator Charles McNary of Oregon, accepts the G. O. P. vice-presidential nomination on August 27. By waiting, Wallace would be able to answer both.

Also, it was believed there would be some discussion of the extent of President Roosevelt's personal campaigning. In his acceptance speech the night he accepted the unprecedented third term nomination the chief executive said press of international affairs and national defense would force him to confine his campaign utterances largely to the radio and his press conferences.

In recent days, however, there has been a growing demand among Democrats that Mr. Roosevelt get out actively on the road. He has announced a series of inspection trips taking in key army and navy bases and plants, but if his first one through the Norfolk, Va., area was a criterion they will be non-political to the extent he makes no speeches. In 1936, on flood control and drought area inspection trips, Mr. Roosevelt made frequent speeches in addition to greeting large crowds.

ALLEGATIONS DENIED

In the original petition, she charged her husband with cruelty. The couple resides on Route 23, seven miles north of Circleville.

QUESTION: The Boston ivy plants set two years ago on the south side of our house are doing well but the tendrils have difficulty in attaching themselves to the painted bricks. This odd paint is too hard and smooth for them to make contacts as on bare brick or stone. We have considered nailing closely woven wire fence against the wall so that the vines might find sufficient foothold. Can you suggest a plan to overcome the difficulty we are having? W. E. T., Bellefontaine.

ANSWER: It is not uncommon for vines on the south or west side of buildings to have difficulty in clinging because of the heat from the sun. If you will hold them up against the side of the house with a strip of lath or lattice I believe you will find they will develop sufficient shade from their own leaves to enable the holdfasts to attach themselves to the wall.

QUESTION: I have a syringa or mockorange bush which is several years old. I think I have been pruning it at the wrong time of the year since it had few blossoms this year and has a great many new long shoots. Will you please tell me the proper time and how to prune it? Mrs. C. G., Greenfield.

ANSWER: A good rule to follow in pruning all flowering shrubs is to do your pruning just after they have finished blooming. This enables them to produce new bloom wood before the next flowering season. Rather than cutting the tips of the branches back, it is best to remove the entire branch clear to the ground. If your shrub is too tall it is better to take it out and replace it with a lower growing variety.

QUESTION: Will you please tell me what is the matter with my monthly roses. The leaves turn yellow and drop off. Some of the bushes are bare. I use sulfur on them. I water them with city water and they are in a good sunny place. Some of them are very expensive roses. Mrs. F. J. L., Greenville.

ANSWER: Although sulfur is usually recommended for the control of mildew and black spot on roses, you will find that it is necessary to apply it once a week and after each rain in order to secure adequate control. Not only this, but you must use a very fine dusting sulfur applied with a dust gun so that it covers all parts of the plant. May I suggest you ask your county agent for a copy of our bulletin on Garden Roses.

QUESTION: I am writing to inquire if there is a remedy for a lawn infested with chiggers. The writer has a summer cottage on the side of a hill which was formerly pasture. For the past three years I have burned off the weeds, sowed grass seed and have a fairly good lawn which is kept mowed very short all through the season, but I still have the chiggers each season. D. S., Mt. Vernon.

ANSWER: Although I have never seen any recommendations for controlling chiggers, I believe you will find that if you will dust your lawn with sulfur, it will tend to keep down the chiggers. I have found that it is simpler to treat myself than the lawn, dusting a mixture of equal parts of talcum powder and dusting sulfur from my neck to my feet. I suggest dusting sulfur because it is so much finer than powdered sulfur that there is no tendency for it to scratch.

QUESTION: I want to ask you about my peonies. All the flowers were not picked off and some seed pods have formed. Can new peony plants be started from these?

ANSWER: Peonies can be grown from seed but they will take quite a few years before they will come into bloom and then usually will be inferior to the parent plant. However, you can have a lot of pleasure from growing your own this way.

"The Gentleman from Indiana"

THE THIRD TERM A CENTURY AGO AND TODAY

One hundred years ago November next William Henry Harrison, the hero of Tippecanoe, was elected the ninth President of the United States. Exactly one month after his inauguration he died. His last words were, "Sir, I wish you to understand the true principles of the Government. I wish them carried out. I ask for nothing more."

As one of these true principles General Harrison declared against the use of the power of office to perpetuate the holding of office. He thought it a serious mistake by those who had written the Constitution that they did not place an express limit on the length of time the presidency might be held by one individual.

Old Tippecanoe was a Whig. But in stating his view he followed the great Democrats, Jefferson and Jackson. Jackson had six times urged such a constitutional amendment upon Congress. General Harrison's belief is to be found in his inaugural address. I quote from it:

A defect of the Constitution is "the eligibility of the same individual to a second term of the presidency. The sagacious mind of Mr. Jefferson early saw and lamented this error. . . . As, however, one mode of correction is in the power of every president, and consequently in mine, it would be useless, and perhaps invidious, to enumerate the evils of which, in the opinion of many of our fellow citizens, this error of the sages who framed the Constitution may have been the source and the bitter fruits which we are still to gather from it if it continues to disfigure our system."

"Republicans can commit no greater error than to adopt or continue any feature in their systems of government which may be calculated to create or increase the love of power in the bosoms of those to whom necessity obliges men to commit the management of their affairs; and surely nothing is more likely to produce such a state of mind than the long continuance of an office of high trust. Nothing can be more corrupting, nothing more destructive of all those noble feelings which belong to the character of a devoted Republican patriot. When this corrupting passion once takes possession of the human mind, like the love of gold it becomes insatiable. It is the never-ending worm in his bosom, grows with his growth and strengthens with the declining years of his victims. "If this is true, it is the part of wisdom for a republic to limit the service of that officer at least to whom she has intrusted the management of her foreign relations, the execution of her laws, and the command of her armies and navies to a period so short as to prevent his forgetting that he is the accountable agent, not the principal; the servant, not the master."

Whether the "bitter fruits" which we are still to gather from a third, fourth or fifth term in the presidency are soon to be harvested, I do not know. It is possible that Mr. Roosevelt in asking American citizens to place him on a pedestal above Washington, Jefferson, Jackson, Harrison and Lincoln, has finally asked too much.

President William Henry Harrison was 16 when the Constitution was written. He served under Presidents Washington, Adams, Jefferson and Madison. He was soldier, Governor of the Indiana Territory, Congressman, Senator, Foreign Minister, President. His first and only message to Congress, in its devotion to "republican liberty," ranks, in my judgment, next to the best of Washington, Jefferson and Lincoln.

He foresaw the time when: "By making the President the sole distributor of all patronage of the Government the framers of the Constitution do not appear to have anticipated at how short a period it would become a formidable instrument to control the free operations of the State governments. Of trifling importance at first, it had early in Mr. Jefferson's Administration become so powerful as to create great alarm in the mind of that patriot from the potent influence it might exert in controlling the freedom of the elective franchise."

Shades of Harry Hopkins! General Harrison knew, one hundred years ago, what would happen when public officials boasted that the beneficiaries of Federal patronage would "know their friends." He knew, as did Acton that "Power always corrupts, and absolute power corrupts absolutely."

These words of a great President may be contrasted with "The World Wants Roosevelt," which was belched forth by the Kelly-Nash Superintendent of Sewers at the recent convention which booted the name of Jefferson.

Tired Kidneys Often Bring Sleepless Nights

Doctors say your kidneys contain 15 miles of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. When they get tired and don't work right in the daytime, many people have to get up at night. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder. Don't neglect this condition and lose valuable, restful sleep. When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may also cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Three Men Meet At Hyde Park To Outline Campaign For November Balloting

FLYNN IN WASHINGTON

Farm Secretary May Await Willie, McNary Speeches Before Own Address

HYDE PARK, N. Y., August 8.—Definite plans for President Roosevelt's home-stretch drive to win a third term election against Republican Nominee Wendell Willkie were in the making today as Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace came to Hyde Park for a strategy conference with his running mate.

Present in advance at the Roosevelt Hudson Valley home was Secretary of Commerce Harry Hopkins, who manipulated pre-convention maneuvers at the Chicago Democratic convention for the President and who seems destined to play an important, though backstage role in the current campaign.

This afternoon, the three men planned to sit at their ease on the spacious porch of the Hyde Park house and debate methods of bringing victory to the Democratic ticket again.

Edward J. Flynn, who will take over the Democratic national chairmanship from James A. Farley on August 17, was not to be present. Flynn was in Washington conferring with other New Deal leaders on the manner in which he will manage the Roosevelt-Wallace campaign.

Wallace May Wait
An immediate decision to be made related to the date of Wallace's formal acceptance of the vice-presidential nomination. Observers believe he would wait until August 28 or 29 because Willkie's Elwood, Ind., ceremonies fall on August 17 and Senator Charles McNary of Oregon, accepts the G. O. P. vice-presidential nomination on August 27. By waiting, Wallace would be able to answer both.

Also, it was believed there would be some discussion of the extent of President Roosevelt's personal campaigning. In his acceptance speech the night he accepted the unprecedented third term nomination the chief executive said press of international affairs and national defense would force him to confine his campaign utterances largely to the radio and his press conferences.

In recent days, however, there has been a growing demand among Democrats that Mr. Roosevelt get out actively on the road. He has announced a series of inspection trips taking in key army and navy bases and plants, but if his first one through the Norfolk, Va., area was a criterion they will be non-political to the extent he makes no speeches. In 1936, on flood control and drought area inspection trips, Mr. Roosevelt made frequent speeches in addition to greeting large crowds.

Funeral Today

CINCINNATI, August 8—Still shaky from the shock of Will Hershberger's tragic death, the Cincinnati Reds were only five games ahead of the Brooklyn Dodgers today as they again crossed bats with the Chicago Cubs, who slammed out three runs in the tenth yesterday to take a 5 to 3 decision.

The loss snapped Paul Derringer's streak of seven hurling victories as he was charged with his eighth defeat of the year against 16 wins. Homers by Bill Nicholson and Jimmy Gleason kept the Cubs in the game until the tenth, when four singles, an intentional pass and a squeeze play added three tallies.

Big Bill Lee, who went out in the tenth after the third Redleg run crossed the payoff platter, was credited with the victory.

Bucky Walters was to make his fourth straight attempt to chalk up his 16th victory today against Lefty Larry French.

Regardless of the score, the game will be called promptly at 5 p. m. For at that time, (two o'clock California time) funeral services will be held for Hershberger, and the Reds wish no action during the services.

Manager Oscar Vitt of the Cleveland Indians has called Lou Boudreau the best shortstop in Major League baseball, and today the Tribe's pilot had added evidence to support his opinion.

For the kid shortstop up from Buffalo of the International League batted in six runs yesterday as the Indians beat the Chicago White Sox, 9 to 3, and kept the pace a half game behind the Detroit Tigers in the American League race.

Boudreau accomplished all the damage with three hits off Johnny Rigney, two of them home runs. His homer in the first came with the bases empty, but his four-bagger in the seventh accounted for three tallies. Then to top off his day's work, Lou smashed a single to send in two ninth-inning runs.

Boudreau, who with Buffalo teammate Ray Mack at second base, gives the Indians a keystone defense and offense superior to any in the majors, is a recent graduate of the University of Illinois and did not enter professional baseball until 1938.

Detroit retained its small margin of leadership mainly on the strength of a five-run rally in the third that brought a 7 to 5 victory over the St. Louis Browns. Pitcher Johnny Gorsica, who wasn't around at the finish, started the rally with a single and Birdie Tebbetts' three-run double supplied the major punch.

An after-dark record throng of 53,997 turned out at the Polo Grounds for Capt. Melvin Ott night to watch the Brooklyn Dodgers runaway with the New York Giants, 8 to 4. Ott was presented with a chest of silver and a set of golf clubs.

Pittsburgh's Pirates stretched their victory string to seven and went over the .500 mark for the first time since early April by whipping the St. Louis Cardinals, 10 to 9 and 12 to 6 in a double-header.

High-Priced Joe on Bench

ONE of the reasons for the recent slump of the Brooklyn Dodgers has been the poor hitting of the club. Among those benched by Manager Leo Durocher is Joe Medwick, the fence-busting outfielder who was acquired from the St. Louis Cardinals at a huge price.

MIKE JACOBS' MOVE TO OBTAIN DODGERS FOUGHT

NEW YORK, August 8—An unexpected hitch today threatened to frustrate Boxing Promoter Mike Jacobs' plans to acquire the Brooklyn Dodgers National League Baseball Club.

Mrs. James A. Mulvey, daughter of the late Stephen McKeever and owner of 25 percent of the Brooklyn baseball club stock, declared that she would fight any attempt by the Brooklyn Trust Company to sell the Dodgers to Jacobs. The trust company has offered Jacobs the 51 percent of the stock which it owns, but Jacobs has announced he won't buy unless he can get the entire 100 percent of the stock.

Mrs. Mulvey said she stuck with the Dodgers through all the hard times and had no inclination to step out now when the Dodgers are winning games and making money.

WASHINGTON C. H. GOLF TEAM THUMPS LOCALS

Pickaway Country Club golfers lost a 48½ to 5½ match Wednesday afternoon to a strong team from Washington C. H., the match being played on the local course. The only local golfers to win their matches were Tom Gilliland and J. Wray Henry, Bub Gusman and Charles Gilmore splitting theirs, and Dr. Lacey of Chillicothe winning for the local team.

Best scores of the day were Eshelman of the Washington C. H. team with 38-38, 76; Bob Hagerty of Washington, 39; Thornburg, 39; Cornwall, 38, and Bob Friece, a 37 after a first round 42. Friece is the only Circleville golfer to shoot a low score.

The Washington club sent 30 golfers to Circleville, this number being considerably more than the local club had available.

FINEST HORSES STARTING WORKOUTS FOR BIG DERBY

CHICAGO, August 8—Bimelech and Sirocco, two of the season's leading three-year-olds, come to Chicago today to begin workouts for the 30th running of the $60,000 American derby at Washington Park Saturday.

The newcomers, with Gallahadion, the Kentucky Derby winner, and Weigh Anchor, a California threat, are expected to make Saturday's race one of the best in derby history. Three of these horses—"Big Blim," Gallahadion and Sirocco, have taken turns beating each other all season, but Weigh Anchor will be something of an unknown quantity in the derby company.

SECOND PLACE BATTLE IN ASSOCIATION HOT

COLUMBUS, August 8—The battle for second place in the American Association is going to be a long hard one, it became apparent today as Minneapolis stretched its lead over Columbus to three games by walloping the league-leading Kansas City Blues, 12 to 2.

The Millers, who seemingly had been in the doldrums of late, snapped out of it to slam out 16 hits, including four doubles, and end the game gloriously by plating six counters in the final frame. Despite the loss, however, Kansas City still had a safe lead of a dozen games, and only an earthquake can shake them out of the driver's seat.

Columbus dropped to three games behind the Millers when they were nosed out by Toledo in the ninth, 8 to 7, in a nip-and-tuck battle. Each squad boomed out a dozen safeties. The win gave Toledo an even break in the two-game series.

Johnny Vandermeer struck out 12 men before forced out of the game in the sixth with a sore finger as Indianapolis defeated Louisville, 4 to 2. However, Vandy's wildness—he walked seven in the innings he toiled—put the Indians a run behind when he left the game, and he did not get credit for the victory.

HEROES AND GOATS

Heroes—Lou Boudreau, Indians, whose two homers and single drove in six of his team's nine runs as the Indians whipped the White Sox; Claude Passeau, Cubs, who entered the game in the 10th inning with the bases loaded, and got the last two outs enabling Chicago to lick the Reds.

Goats—Paul Derringer, Reds, who blew up in the 10th inning allowing the Cubs to break a two-all tie with a three-run rally; Johnny Rigney, White Sox, who might have been a winner if he had been able to silence Lou Boudreau's loud bat.

BIG PAUL DROPS 5 TO 3 AFFRAY; BUCKY ON HILL

Extra Inning Scrap Goes To Cubs; Hershberger Funeral Today

CINCINNATI, August 8—Still shaky from the shock of Will Hershberger's tragic death, the Cincinnati Reds were only five games ahead of the Brooklyn Dodgers today as they again crossed bats with the Chicago Cubs, who slammed out three runs in the tenth yesterday to take a 5 to 3 decision.

The loss snapped Paul Derringer's streak of seven hurling victories as he was charged with his eighth defeat of the year against 16 wins. Homers by Bill Nicholson and Jimmy Gleeson kept the Cubs in the game until the tenth, when four singles, an intentional pass and a squeeze play added three tallies.

Big Bill Lee, who went out in the tenth after the third Redleg run crossed the payoff platter, was credited with the victory.

Bucky Walters was to make his fourth straight attempt to chalk up his 16th victory today against Lefty Larry French.

Regardless of the score, the game will be called promptly at 5 p. m. For at that time, (two o'clock California time) funeral services will be held for Hershberger, and the Reds wish no action during the services.

Manager Oscar Vitt of the Cleveland Indians has called Lou Boudreau the best shortstop in Major League baseball, and today the Tribe's pilot had added evidence to support his opinion.

For the kid shortstop up from Buffalo of the International League batted in six runs yesterday as the Indians beat the Chicago White Sox, 9 to 3, and kept the pace a half game behind the Detroit Tigers in the American League race.

Boudreau accomplished all the damage with three hits off Johnny Rigney, two of them home runs. His homer in the first came with the bases empty, but his four-bagger in the seventh accounted for three tallies. Then to top off his day's work, Lou smashed a single to send in two ninth-inning runs.

Boudreau, who with Buffalo teammate Ray Mack at second base, gives the Indians a keystone defense and offense superior to any in the majors, is a recent graduate of the University of Illinois and did not enter professional baseball until 1933.

Detroit retained its small margin of leadership mainly on the strength of a five-run rally in the third that brought a 7 to 5 victory over the St. Louis Browns. Pitcher Johnny Gorsica, who wasn't around at the finish, started the rally with a single and Birdie Tebbetts' three-run double supplied the major punch.

An after-dark record throng of 53,997 turned out at the Polo Grounds for Capt. Melvin Ott night to watch the Brooklyn Dodgers runaway with the New York Giants, 8 to 4. Ott was presented with a chest of silver and a set of golf clubs.

Pittsburgh's Pirates stretched their victory string to seven and went over the .500 mark for the first time since early April by whipping the St. Louis Cardinals, 10 to 9 and 12 to 6 in a double-header.

ONE of the reasons for the recent slump of the Brooklyn Dodgers has been the poor hitting of the club. Among those benched by Manager Leo Durocher is Joe Medwick, the fence-busting outfielder who was acquired from the St. Louis Cardinals at a huge price.

MIKE JACOBS' MOVE TO OBTAIN DODGERS FOUGHT

NEW YORK, August 8—An unexpected hitch today threatened to frustrate Boxing Promoter Mike Jacobs' plans to acquire the Brooklyn Dodgers National League Baseball Club.

Mrs. James A. Mulvey, daughter of the late Stephen McKeever and owner of 25 percent of the Brooklyn baseball club stock, declared that she would fight any attempt by the Brooklyn Trust Company to sell the Dodgers to Jacobs. The trust company has offered Jacobs the 51 percent of the stock which it owns, but Jacobs has announced he won't buy unless he can get the entire 100 percent of the stock.

Mrs. Mulvey said she stuck with the Dodgers through all the hard times and had no inclination to step out now when the Dodgers are winning games and making money.

HEAT

A HEAT WAVE passes like a sort of bad dream. Nothing is real. Work, play, sleep, food all partake of this quality of unreality. The first days of coolness bring an awakening to the sort of world one used to know.

While the experience is fresh in the mind is a good time to give it a look to try to see what mistakes were made, how to plan to stand the next one better.

It is important to realize that no one can do the same work in high temperatures as in low ones. It is not soft nor lazy to realize this, but only sensible. The days of very great heat and humidity combined are few in the year. When they come it is wise to know what things are really important to get done, to do those few as quickly and easily as may be and then stop. The routine of most offices and factories can be slackened or lightened a bit with no harm. Where a certain number of hours at a certain task are inevitable, that period is best endured by taking the rest of the 24 hours very quietly and easily indeed.

Meals entirely cold are not good at hot times. But the cup of clear hot soup, or of tea or coffee will enable them to digest. The simple foods which keep up energy are best—lean meats, plain vegetables and fruit. Let the heavy gravies and starches wait. WORLD AT A GLANCE

—By—
Charles P. Stewart

SECRETARY OF STATE CORDELL HULL unquestionably has done more than any other single individual to make friends for the United States throughout Latin America.

Newspapers from that part of the world are beginning to arrive in this country with their accounts of the recent Havana conference of the western hemispherical republics' representatives, and without one exception they are warm in their praise of Secretary Hull who was chief of our delegation at the gathering in the Cuban capital.

And it takes an unlimited amount of tact for a Yankee to get himself and his country liked by Latin Americans. Generally speaking, we haven't the savvy that they appreciate almost more than any other human quality. Our idea of honest outspokenness is their idea of incivility. Furthermore, it's undeniable that in the past Uncle Sam has occasionally been overbearing in his dealings with some of our southern neighbors. They don't forget the Mexican war, for instance, or our landings of marines here and there, or Colombia's loss of Panama as a preliminary to our canal-digging project.

Herbert Hoover was our first president to suggest the desirability of a bit less big brotherliness in our relations with our smaller brethren on the New World's couple of continents and nearby islands. What Hoover said was essentially a k. The trouble was, he didn't say it in the sugary tone of voice needed to make a hit with the Latins.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S PALAVER

President Roosevelt, however, has exactly the right kind of palaver. For example, the way he says, "my friends," over the radio, couldn't possibly be improved on for Latin-American consumption.

But, of course, the president mainly has generalized. Secretary Hull's job at Havana was to talk specific turkey to the Latin representatives. The nub of his mission was to get the Monroe Doctrine accepted as a Pan-American doctrine—not only a Yankee policy but a policy subscribed to by the whole 21 of our western republics.

And it appears that he handled it to perfection.

He had substantial difficulties to overcome, too. A majority of the delegates, already won over to Yankeeism by President Roosevelt's earlier affability, seem to have arrived in Havana in a Yankeeish acquiescent frame of mind. But there were a few balky ones, especially Argentina. That was understandable. Argentina produces a surplus of almost the same commodities that we produce a surplus of. Consequently, the Argentines find no market for their stuff in the United States. They have to have European markets. Thus it was natural in them to hesitate to antagonize European customers by indorsing a distinctively anti-European Pan-American doctrine.

Nevertheless, the Argentine delegates, like all the other delegates, finally signed the compact, now known as the "Act of Havana."

Secretary Hull was so nice about it that they couldn't resist.

JUST ONE QUALIFICATION

The Argentines signed with just one qualification. They said that their signature didn't count until after the deal's approval by their home government.

That may prove to be a mean nigger in the woodpile.

All the same, there are other countries whose diplomats' signatures to treaties aren't binding until they're otherwise ratified. One such country is the United States. Illustratively, Secretary Hull's signature to the "Act of Havana" won't be valid until the senate has approved it. The senate's sure to do it and maybe the Argentine home government's approval isn't so much of a certainty. Still, we can't win a very good grace, complain of that qualification on the Argentine delegates' part.

The Argentines, by the way, pointed to the necessity for a legislative confirmation of their act, to make it valid, as a proof of the democratic character of their nation's regime.

Several Latin-American countries, they remarked, are so dictatorially bossed that their presidents' representatives can conclude any kind of an international bargain they please, regardless of their various congress' views on the subject. They say that the Argentine, like the United States, is too democratic for that.

REYNAUD FACES CHARGE

WASHINGTON—The rigorous French censorship has suppressed the information, but former Premier Paul Reynaud will face a sensational charge when he is tried before the special war guilt court.

The scandal is based on what has become known in inner diplomatic circles as "Reynaud's trunk."

Following the French collapse, Reynaud attempted to escape from the country. His plan was to go to Portugal and embark for the United States, where he hoped to be made French Ambassador. He made his dash in two automobiles.

In one he travelled with Countess Helene de Portes, the small, homely, shrill-voiced widow for whom he left his wife several years ago and had French divorce laws changed so he could marry her in 1941. As has been reported, this car went off the road, killing the Countess and severely injuring Reynaud.

The other car contained Reynaud's two private secretaries, baggage and the mysterious trunk. This car was seized at the Spanish border. There, search of the trunk disclosed that it contained—20,000,000 francs in paper money, presumably from French public funds.

A large quantity of gold.

A large quantity of jewels belonging to the Countess.

Numerous confidential state documents, among them secret French plans for the destruction of Rumanian oil wells to prevent their falling into Nazi hands.

Confronted with this evidence in the hospital, Reynaud vehemently denied knowing anything about the contents of the trunk. He asserted that if the money, jewels and documents were taken, it was without his knowledge and approval. He placed the blame on the two secretaries.

NOTE—The Petain government, acting under Nazi orders, has not revealed the fact that Berlin has billed the French for a large sum to cover the cost of the German occupation. This will give Berlin the basis for a claim on French gold and dollar credits in the U. S., which the Treasury took under control immediately after the French surrender.

"I HAVE confirmed by repeated experiments," writes Dr. Everet Lain, of Oklahoma City, "that human saliva, whether acid, alkaline or neutral, makes a good electrolyte through which metallic elements freely circulate from a higher to a lower electro potential. Thus within every oral cavity which contains dentures such as plates, bridges, crowns or fillings of dissimilar elemental consistency, there is constituted a complete galvanic battery."

dissimilar metal dentures are in place, one in the upper, the other in the lower jaw. Again there may be more or less continuous nerve soreness from the same cause. These subjective feelings become gradually obliterated with the passage of time. But some patients stay nervous from this obscure cause, have indigestion and loss of weight. A continuous metallic, astringent or salty taste in the mouth, and increased salivary secretion also result.

One man I heard of, a carborundum grinder, who had metallic deposits all over his teeth found he had a complete crystal set in his mouth and could hear radio programs day and night. It took the facilities of the research department of the NBC network to discover what was the matter with him.

Hollander has described galvanic electric burns of the mouth cavity from this cause and others have described blanched or grayish patches and erosions on the tongue and inner cheeks.

This brings up the subject of bad dentures in general and the relation of systemic disturbances of the body to traumatic difficulties in the teeth. We discussed the relation of tooth infection to systemic disturbances yesterday. But all the body disturbances that come from teeth do not necessarily have to have a germ origin. The loss of some teeth places an unequal stress on the remaining teeth, and results in inadequate mastication and poor nutrition.

Improperly constructed dentures put an unusual strain on the jaws and result not only in poor digestion and nutrition—a few months ago we recited the case of a colleague who lost thirty pounds right after acquiring a poorly fitted denture—but to neuralgias, headaches, head noises, and partial deafness.

In other ways, aside from invasion by germs, the teeth may cause constitutional trouble—impacted teeth, overhanging fillings, leaky fillings causing nerve exposure, traumatic occlusion—all these should be rectified by the dentist and not carelessly submitted to wholesale extraction.

So on every trick that comes along, your job is to examine the situation closely and see if there is anything you can do to help make an entry for him, even throwing away possible winners of your own at times in order to promote his lower cards.

East studied the trick. It dawned on him that if the 3 was a singleton, his partner had the A and 9. So he himself played the 10 on North's K. When the K was then led from dummy, East put on the J, and declarer's goose was cooked.

West got that trick with the A and led a third spade, which North won. When a third heart was led from dummy, East had the 8 to play on it, so that West's 9 was a winner of the third trick for the side, and the spade 6 then set the contract, which was just one trick too high.

CHAPTER THIRTY SIX

LINDA recognized the woman on the Staten Island ferry as Sue Ackerman, sister of Clarabell Ackerman, the girl who had been so ruthlessly murdered in the main office of the Bagley Models' agency. Linda had wondered what had become of this older sister and whether or not she had been seeing Mina Nevins.

It was odd to meet the sister on a Staten Island ferry, though. The Ackerman apartment was far uptown, in no way related to this distant island.

"Have you relatives on the island?" Linda asked casually. "No, I have no relatives at all, now that my sister is dead." The voice was not bitter, rather it was mocking.

"Miss Ackerman, who wanted to kill her?" Linda asked impulsively. "Not anyone, my dear child. Don't you realize those bullets were for you?"

The boat was nearing the New York skyline and people were crowding around so they would be able to leave the boat when it docked. Linda spoke quickly. "Do you know who did this thing?"

The woman didn't answer for a moment. Then she shrugged her shoulders. "What makes you think that I would know? And why wouldn't I be as eager to find out as you are?"

"Of course you would. It's just that it's spoiled so many things for me." The boat was almost in. "Have you seen the evening paper?" the woman asked.

Linda shook her head. "No, I've stopped reading the stories entirely."

"Yes? And looking at the pictures, too? You photograph very well, my dear, and the newspaper likenesses aren't half bad. I think you might be interested in this."

She was holding a paper toward Linda, a slim finger in a shabby glove, pointing to a special paragraph.

Linda read it. "The revolver from which the two fatal bullets were shot has been identified as one belonging to Miss Sarah Markley, glamor queen of last season, and daughter of the well-known producer, Peter Markley."

The story went on to say that Miss Markley's actions were completely accounted for on the night of the fatal shooting and she herself had not missed the gun until men or the ballistics bureau had confronted her with evidence that it was her weapon which was responsible for the death shots.

However, police were investigating the iron-clad alibi, the words went on. Linda read them, fascinated. Had Ronald known this when he talked to her? Had he been afraid that Sarah would in some way be implicated, and so been willing for an old man to suffer a few more days until Sarah was entirely free?

Men were only human. But Ronald couldn't do this. Yet, why wasn't it more worthy to ask a few days' reprieve for a girl than for a career?

"I should like to come to see you some day, Miss Avery," Sue Ackerman said as the boat swung into its berth. "Are you home nights?"

"Yes, usually." Yes, she would be at home at night from now on. Ronald would not be coming and Robert had gone away.

Robert! At the name her heart felt the lift of wings. Robert! She couldn't let him sail away forever, and yet she loved, or maybe had loved, Ronald. It was lonely in the apartment when she returned to it. She missed Caroline. There was no one now who might call her whose voice she especially wished to hear. In some undefinable way she knew that Ronald would not try to reach her, would not apologize.

She was holding a paper toward Linda, pointing to a special paragraph.

Well, that was all right, she told herself as she lay in a warm tub of perfumed water. It was better to know when a road divided instead of trying to walk side by side with an ever widening distance between. Life was good, it had to be good, it had to be worthwhile, whatever happened. The road went on, ran to somewhere, and no one could lag by the roadside.

She dried herself, brushed her amber curls until the electricity gleamed, wrapped herself in a yellow silk negligee and sat down by the window. She could see a red candle burning on the altar in the monastery across the way. She could hear low voices chanting prayers. Across the garden there was peace.

Because Ronald had been first to her so long, because she had waited for him so many months, she put her head down on her arms and sobbed. But when she raised her head, the storm was spent. No one would know that the platform upon which she stood had crumbled, she told herself.

And yet—and yet there was that old happiness when she thought about Robert, a happiness that persisted even in the midst of the debris that Ronald had made of her life. Worn out with emotion, she went to bed.

She did not know how long she had been sleeping when she became aware of a bell ringing somewhere. First it was vague and distant and she moved her head so she need not listen.

It persisted and at last she opened her eyes. The telephone was ringing. Without analyzing her emotions, she hoped that it was Robert calling her.

She picked up the instrument from its cradle on the bedside table. Ronald's voice came to her,

A HEAT WAVE passes like a sort of bad dream. Nothing is real. Work, play, sleep, food all partake of this quality of unreality. The first days of coolness bring an awakening to the sort of world one used to know.

While the experience is fresh in the mind is a good time to give it a look to try to see what mistakes were made, how to plan to stand the next one better.

It is important to realize that no one can do the same work in high temperatures as in low ones. It is not soft nor lazy to realize this, but only sensible. These subjective feelings become gradually obliterated with the passage of time. But some patients stay nervous from this obscure cause, have indigestion and loss of weight. A continuous metallic, astringent, or salty taste in the mouth, and increased salivary secretion also result.

One man I heard of, a carbundum grinder, who had metallic deposits all over his teeth found he had a complete crystal set in his mouth and could hear radio programs day and night. It took the facilities of the research department of the NBC network to discover what was the matter with him.

Hollander has described galvanic electric burts of the mouth cavity from this cause and others have described blanched or grayish patches and erosions on the tongue and inner cheeks.

This brings up the subject of bad dentures in general and the relation of systemic disturbances of the body to traumatic difficulties in the teeth. We discussed the relation of teeth infection to systemic disturbances yesterday. But all the body disturbances that come from teeth do not necessarily have to have a germ origin. The loss of some teeth places an unequal stress on the remaining teeth, and results in inadequate mastication and poor nutrition.

Improperly constructed dentures put an unusual strain on the jaws and result not only in poor digestion and nutrition—a few months ago we recited the case of a colleague who lost thirty pounds right after acquiring a poorly fitted denture—but to neuralgias, headaches, head noises, and partial deafness.

In other ways, aside from invasion by germs, the teeth may cause constitutional trouble—impacted teeth, overhanging fillings, leaky fillings causing nerve exposure, traumatic occlusion—all these should be rectified by the dentist and not carelessly submitted to wholesale extraction.

IF YOUR partner's suit is on the way to establishment against a hostile No Trump contract, you should usually bend every energy to helping him score the maximum of it. Frequently the fate of the contract will depend on whether he has sufficient entries to get in the lead after he has one or more cards of it set up. So on every trick that comes along, your job is to examine the situation closely and see if there is anything you can do to help make an entry for him, even throwing away possible winners of your own at times in order to promote his lower cards.

CHAPTER THIRTY SIX

LINDA recognized the woman on the Staten Island ferry as Sue Ackerman, sister of Clarabell Ackerman, the girl who had been so ruthlessly murdered in the main office of the Bagley Models' agency.

Linda had wondered what had become of this older sister and whether or not she had been seeing Mina Nevins.

It was odd to meet the sister on a Staten Island ferry, though. The Ackerman apartment was far uptown, in no way related to this distant island.

"Have you relatives on the island?" Linda asked casually.

"No, I have no relatives at all, now that my sister is dead." The voice was not bitter, rather it was mocking.

"Miss Ackerman, who wanted to kill her?" Linda asked impulsively. "Not anyone, my dear child. Don't you realize those bullets were for you?"

The boat was nearing the New York skyline and people were crowding around so they would be able to leave the boat when it docked. Linda spoke quickly.

"Do you know who did this thing?"

The woman didn't answer for a moment. Then she shrugged her shoulders. "What makes you think that I would know? And why wouldn't I be as eager to find out as you are?"

"Of course you would. It's just that it's spoiled so many things for me." The boat was almost in.

"Have you seen the evening paper?" the woman asked.

Linda shook her head. "No, I've stopped reading the stories entirely."

"Yes? And looking at the pictures, too? You photograph very well, my dear, and the newspaper likenesses aren't half bad. I think you might be interested in this."

She was holding a paper toward Linda, a slim finger in a shabby glove, pointing to a special paragraph.

Linda read it. "The revolver from which the two fatal bullets were shot has been identified as one belonging to Miss Sarah Markley, glamor queen of last season, and daughter of the well-known producer, Peter Markley."

The story went on to say that Miss Markley's actions were completely accounted for on the night of the fatal shooting and she herself had not missed the gun until men or the ballistics bureau had confronted her with evidence that it was her weapon which was responsible for the death shot.

However, police were investigating the iron-clad alibi, the words went on. Linda read them, fascinated. Had Ronald known this when he talked to her? Had he been afraid that Sarah would in some way be implicated, and so been willing for an old man to suffer a few more days until Sarah was entirely free?

Men were only human. But Ronald couldn't do this. Yet, why wasn't it more worthy to ask a few days' reprieve for a girl than for a career?

"I should like to come to see you some day, Miss Avery," Sue Ackerman said as the boat swung into its berth. "Are you home nights?"

"Yes, usually. Yes, she would be at home at night from now on. Ronald would not be coming and Robert had gone away."

Robert! At the name her heart felt the lift of wings. Robert! She couldn't let him sail away forever, and yet she loved, or maybe had loved, Ronald.

She was holding a paper toward Linda, pointing to a special paragraph.

It was lonely in the apartment when she returned to it. She missed Caroline. There was no one now who might call her whose voice she especially wished to hear. In some undefinable way she knew that Ronald would not try to reach her, would not apologize.

Well, that was all right, she told herself as she lay in a warm tub of perfumed water. It was better to know when a road divided instead of trying to walk side by side with an ever widening distance between. Life was good, it had to be good, it had to be worthwhile, whatever happened. The road went on, ran to somewhere, and no one could lag by the roadside.

She dried herself, brushed her amber curls until the electricity gleamed, wrapped herself in a yellow silk negligee and sat down by the window. She could see a red candle burning on the altar in the monastery across the way. She could hear low voices chanting prayers. Across the garden there was peace.

Because Ronald had been first to her so long, because she had waited for him so many months, she put her head down on her arms and sobbed. When she raised her head, with its tear-swollen eyes, the storm was spent. No one would know that the platform upon which she stood had crumbled, she told herself.

And yet—and yet there was that odd happiness when she thought about Robert, a happiness that persisted even in the midst of the debris that Ronald had made of her life. Worn out with emotion, she went to bed.

She did not know how long she had been sleeping when she became aware of a bell ringing somewhere. First it was vague and distant and she moved her head so she need not listen.

It persisted and at last she opened her eyes. The telephone was ringing. Without analyzing her emotions, she hoped that it was Robert calling her.

She picked up the instrument from its cradle on the bedside table. Ronald's voice came to her,

Looking Back in Pickaway County

FIVE YEARS AGO

Threats of serious damage to the corn crop faded when Dr. H. R. Clarke, local weatherman, announced that the river had reached its peak in the flood that was the aftermath of a severe general storm.

Today's Menu
Boiled or Broiled Fish
Drawn Butter Sauce
Summer Squash
Tomatoes and Cucumbers, sliced
Hot Blackberry Pudding
Iced Coffee

Summer Squash
Summer squash is not usually peeled unless the outer skin is very tough. It should be well scrubbed, cut in quarters, the seeds removed, and cut into thin slices or pieces. Cook in very little boiling, salted water, about 1 inch in depth. Cover and cook for five minutes, then uncover and cook until squash is tender. Sprinkle with salt, pour melted butter over it and serve very hot. If you wish to mash squash, better peel before cooking.

Hot Blackberry Pudding
2 cups sifted 2 tsp. shortening
4 tsp. baking powder 1/2 cup berries and juice
1 tsp. salt
Sift dry ingredients together. Work in shortening until mixture is granular. Add berries and juice and stir until berries are mixed through dough. Drop by spoonful in greased muffin pans. Bake in hot oven (450 F.) for 15 minutes. Serve hot with whipped cream or lemon sauce.

Curried Rice
1 cup rice 1 or 2 tsp.
2 tsp. fat 1/4 tsp. pepper
1 tsp. chopped onion 2 1/2 cups boiling water
2 tsp. salt
Wash rice thoroughly. Place fat and onion in stew-pan and cook until onion is yellow; add rice and stir the whole over a hot fire for five minutes. Draw pan out of heat, season with curry powder,

Summer Squash

Summer squash is not usually peeled unless the outer skin is very tough. It should be well scrubbed, cut in quarters, the seeds removed, and cut into thin slices or pieces. Cook in very little boiling, salted water, about 1 inch in depth. Cover and cook for five minutes, then uncover and cook until squash is tender. Sprinkle with salt, pour melted butter over it and serve very hot. If you wish to mash squash, better peel before cooking.

Hot Blackberry Pudding

2 cups sifted flour, 2 tsp. shortening, 4 tsp. baking powder, 1/2 cup berries and juice, 1 tsp. salt.
Sift dry ingredients together. Work in shortening until mixture is granular. Add berries and juice and stir until berries are mixed through dough. Drop by spoonful in greased muffin pans. Bake in hot oven (450 F.) for 15 minutes. Serve hot with whipped cream or lemon sauce.

DECKS CLEARED FOR HOT DEBATE ON DRAFT BILL

Administration Presses For National Guard Call Okeh At Earliest Moment

od" and that voluntary enlistment should be given "a fair trial."

One Amendment Voted On

Barkley called for additional limitation of debate on the legislation to mobilize the National Guard for a year's intensive training after acrimonious debate prevented a vote on but one amendment yesterday.

A crucial "test vote" will be made on the Adams amendment to restrict use of National Guard to the continental United States and its territorial possessions.

Administration senators called the proposal an attempt to restrict enforcement of the Monroe Doctrine. They said it would prevent the President from sending the guard to South American countries.

Administration leaders were worried over the strength shown for the Adams amendment but expressed confidence it will be defeated. They cited the defeat, 47 to 36, of the Donaher amendment to permit resignations from the guard within 20 days after mobilization.

Pay Inadequate

Donaher argued the guardsmen should be allowed to resign from a year's active duty because "the bill waits to provide adequate economic compensation for those drafted into service." Sen. George (D) Ga., asserted the language of the bill would authorize the president to "engage in an undeclared war on foreign soil."

Opponents of the Adams amendment said presidential authority to use the guard in the Western Hemisphere is necessary to serve notice to foreign nations that the United States intends to enforce the Monroe Doctrine.

center" and several oil storage tanks at Haifa, were set on fire and that bombs struck the port's harbor works.)

The communique also stated that the British, as they fell back, inflicted severe casualties on the Italians, while British casualties were "slight."

British sources continued to deride Italian claims that the drive into Egypt already has begun. The only Italian officers on Egyptian soil are prisoners, it was stated.

While admitting that British Somaliland is in serious danger owing to elimination of French Somaliland from the war, British authorities took the view that loss of the entire protectorate, including Berbera, would not prove decisive in the first for control of northeastern Africa.

ROME, August 8.—Italian occupation of the Port of Zeilah in British Somaliland, strategically situated on the Gulf of Aden, will lead to major extension of Premier Mussolini's African Empire, Italian officials predicted today.

These sources said capture of the port and other Italian advances in the British Somaliland protectorate are a preface to incorporation of both British and French Somaliland in Italian Africa.

Occupation of Zeilah by Italian troops was announced formally in today's military bulletin, which said:

"Troops of the Italian forces crossed the Somaliland frontier, reached the sea and occupied Zeilah.

"The air base at Wajir was bombed. Three planes were destroyed on the ground and grave damage and fires were caused in the air base. One enemy pursuit plane was brought down in combat.

"An enemy air raid on Diredda and Massawa caused unimportant damages.

"Five enemy ships conveyed by English warships in the eastern Mediterranean were bombed. Two of the ships were hit and gravely damaged."

At the same time, it was announced that the Italian council of ministers will meet on Saturday.

DONAHEY STANDS AGAINST DRAFT BILL AS FORMED

WASHINGTON, August 8.—Asserting that peacetime military conscription would be an "unprecedented expedient," Senator Donaher (D) Ohio, today announced he will vote against the pending bill to make 12,000,000 men between the ages of 21 and 31 liable for a year of military training.

In an open letter to his Ohio constituents Donaher contended: "First: That this country is in no danger from attack without, if it attends to its own business.

"Second: That voluntary enlistment, for home defense only, for one year at $36 per month should be authorized and carried on until January 1, 1941.

"Third: Then and only then will the congress be able to determine the necessity of nationwide conscription.

"I consider the enactment of the Burke-Wadsworth measure at the moment an unprecedented expedient without basic consideration and I intend to vote against it."

ROTARY OFFICIAL A S K S INCREASE IN MEMBERSHIP

"Give the best you have to Rotary and you may be assured that Rotary will give the best it has to you," Orville B. Littick, district Rotary Club governor, told 40 Rotarians at their meeting Thursday in American Hotel Hurricane.

District Governor Littick complimented the local club on its record of service, and outlined district Rotary plans for the coming year. To compensate for the loss of membership in warring nations he told the group that he was asking all clubs in the district to incur as their membership by ten percent. Additional aid to families of Rotarians in European countries will be given through a Rotary Relief fund, he said, but added that Rotary's attitude toward the war was, and always would be, one of "strict neutrality."

Guests at the luncheon included Frank Simpson, Art Howson and Robert Atwell of Chillicothe, George H. Huber of Logan, W. Va., Harold Clarke of Philadelphia, and Hal Bennett of Circleville.

In Ireland a tourist found at Vidimyr an old church which was used for worship on Sunday. Week days it was used as the village laundry, with the congregation's family wash draped over the pews.

Asked to Fight

A bid to Richard Greene, Hollywood actor, to enlist was extended by Col. Ronald Kingman, commander of the 16th Scottish Regiment, who accused Greene of "using the Canadian Army for publicity." Kingman declared Greene had applied for commission to the only army unit which was not recruiting, and had shunned those looking for men.

sea base improvements in the Pacific will be completed months ahead of schedule.

Edward Tamm, assistant Federal Bureau of Investigation director, and the War Department Intelligence Division, have developed a coordination for the quick detection of subversive activities, saboteurs and "Fifth Columns."

The War Department said the need for war supplies, and increased employment, prompted its action in putting the arsenals on a 24-hour basis. Workers will be paid time and a half for work over 40 hours a week. The three shift order, virtually tripling the workers in the plants, applied to the arsenals in Rock Island, Ill., Watertown, Mass., Philadelphia, Springfield, Mass., Dover, N. J., and Watervliet, N. Y. The three shifts will begin work August 10.

Arthur B. Purvis, head of the British Purchasing Commission, said British plan to expand their American munition purchases by "hundreds of millions of dollars". He said the additional purchases would be in fields not so far entered by the commission, and would include tanks and field artillery.

DECKS CLEARED FOR HOT DEBATE ON DRAFT BILL

ed" and that voluntary enlistment should be given "a fair trial."

One Amendment Voted On

Barkley called for additional limitation of debate on the legislation to mobilize the National Guard for a year's intensive training after acrimonious debate prevented a vote on but one amendment yesterday.

A crucial "test vote" will be made on the Adams amendment to restrict use of National Guard to the continental United States and its territorial possessions.

Administration senators called the proposal an attempt to restrict enforcement of the Monroe Doctrine. They said it would prevent the President from sending the guard to South American countries.

Administration leaders were worried over the strength shown for the Adams amendment but expressed confidence it will be defeated. They cited the defeat, 47 to 36, of the Donaher amendment to permit resignations from the guard within 20 days after mobilization.

Pay Inadequate

Donaher argued the guardsmen should be allowed to resign from a year's active duty because "the bill waits to provide adequate economic compensation for those drafted into service." Sen. George (D) Ga., asserted the language of the bill would authorize the president to "engage in an undeclared war on foreign soil."

Opponents of the Adams amendment said presidential authority to use the guard in the Western Hemisphere is necessary to serve notice to foreign nations that the United States intends to enforce the Monroe Doctrine.

DONAHEY STANDS AGAINST DRAFT BILL AS FORMED

WASHINGTON, August 8.—Asserting that peacetime military conscription would be an "unprecedented expedient," Senator Donahy (D) Ohio, today announced he will vote against the pending bill to make 12,000,000 men between the ages of 21 and 31 liable for a year of military training.

In an open letter to his Ohio constituents Donahy contended: "First: That this country is in no danger from attack without, if it attends to its own business. "Second: That voluntary enlistment, for home defense only, for one year at $36 per month should be authorized and carried on until January 1, 1941.

"Third: Then and only then will the congress be able to determine the necessity of nationwide conscription.

"I consider the enactment of the Burke-Wadsworth measure at the moment an unprecedented expedient without basic consideration and I intend to vote against it."

ROTARY OFFICIAL A S K S INCREASE IN MEMBERSHIP

"Give the best you have to Rotary and you may be assured that Rotary will give the best it has to you." Orville B. Littick, district Rotary Club governor, told 40 Rotarians at their meeting Thursday in American Hotel Hurricane.

District Governor Littick complimented the local club on its record of service, and outlined district Rotary plans for the coming year. To compensate for the loss of membership in warring nations he told the group that he was asking all clubs in the district to increase their membership by ten percent. Additional aid to families of Rotarians in European countries will be given through a Rotary Relief fund, he said, but added that Rotary's attitude toward the war was, and always would be, one of "strict neutrality."

Guests at the luncheon included Frank Simpson, Art Howson and Robert Atwell of Chillicothe, George H. Huber of Logan, W. Va., Harold Clarke of Philadelphia, and Hal Bennett of Circleville.

WILLKIE VOICES TWO ADDITIONS FOR HATCH ACT

G. O. P. Nominee Would Ask High Officials To List Assets

PROPOSALS SURPRISING

Fletcher's Interpretation Of Measure Fails To Win Approval

COLORADO SPRINGS, August 8.—Wendell Willkie stood fast today on two of the most amazing collateral proposals ever made by a presidential candidate.

What Willkie proposed, in effect, was a super-Hatch act which would:

1.—Force high officials of the federal government up to and including the president, to file statements of their personal assets with the secretary of state on taking and leaving office.

2.—Prevent members of the immediate families of such officials, including the president, from receiving compensation for any services performed for anybody in connection with the transactions of any department of the federal government.

In addition, Willkie promised that whether or not amendments of that nature were added to the Hatch Act, he would give the widest publicity to his own assets and those of members of his family if elected president and would file statements with the secretary of state.

"I am in favor of all amendments to the Hatch Act necessary to make it air-tight in carrying out both its provisions and its spirit," Willkie told a press conference and then launched into his double-barreled proposal.

Reporter Whistles
One reporter whistled as the proposal was made and the candidate grinned, obviously enjoying the effect.

The Hatch Act has been one of Willkie's pet themes and he did not appear to enjoy the publicity given Henry P. Fletcher's interpretation of its terms which, if followed, would have permitted the raising of a campaign fund, practically unlimited.

His first reaction was to announce that he had not read the opinion given by Fletcher, who is counsel for the Republican national committee, but that it was his intent to keep campaign expenditures within $2,500,000. The Hatch Act limit is $3,000,000.

Although Willkie inferentially disclaimed the Fletcher opinion it was immediately attacked by Attorney General Robert Jackson, who suggested that the Republicans were seeking to defeat its purpose through seeking out loopholes.

Willkie had no comment on that but his new proposal—that he is all for making the act air-tight—apparently is his answer.

The idea of an accounting seems to have been lurking in his mind in nebulous form for some time. At Philadelphia, before his nomination, he was invited to appear before the Texas delegation and one delegate asked him frankly and flatly about his assets. Willkie promptly retorted that he would be willing to lay a financial statement against one made by President Roosevelt.

Increases Refused
He also told his questioner that he was paid $75,000 a year as the president of Commonwealth and Southern Corporation and had twice refused salary increases because he didn't believe any man in private industry should get more than the president of the United States.

After disposing of his proposal for amendments to the Hatch Act, Willkie announced more new business—that meetings with former President Herbert Hoover and Alf M. Landon, the 1936 Republican nominee, would definitely take place next week.

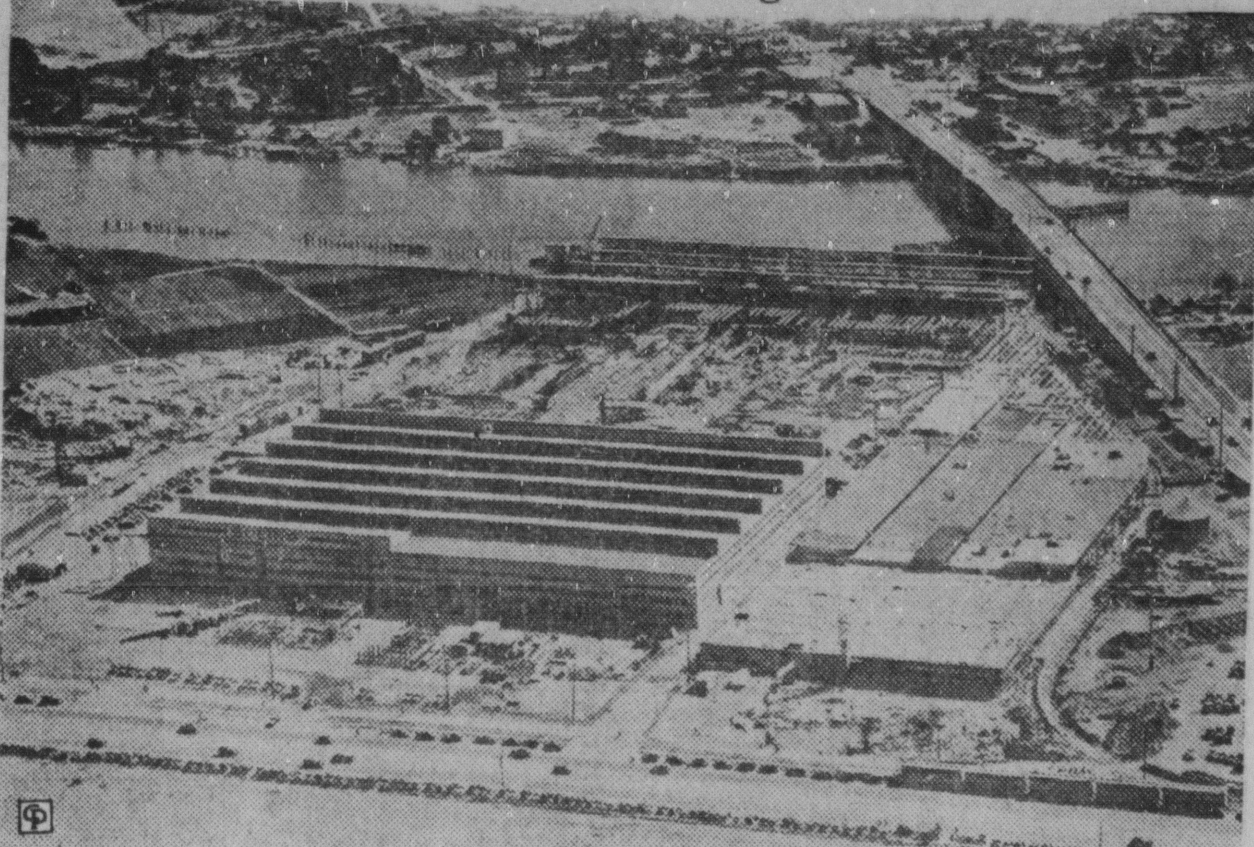

Landon will be in Colorado Springs for lunch on Tuesday and the meeting with Hoover will be in Denver, probably on Wednesday. The former president is en route to Montana for a fishing trip.

Willkie said he had no particular questions to take up either with Hoover or Landon, but had planned to meet them before delivering his acceptance speech.

FOUR INJURED AS PLANE CRASHES AT NEWARK, N. J.

NEWARK, N. J., August 8.—Three men and an attractive blonde were in St. James Hospital today with injuries suffered when their plane crashed near Newark airport on a flight from Williamsport, Pa.

One of the injured passengers, identified as W. R. Hopkins, 71, of New York replied negatively when asked by a nurse whether he was the former city manager of Cleveland.

Hopkins and Theodore Nagel, 58, an engineer, had spent yesterday in Williamsport on business and chartered the plane of Mathew Seckinger, 31, to return to New York. Seckinger, it was stated, invited a friend, Harriet Neff, 21, along for the ride.

The plane crashed in the marshes about 300 yards from Newark airport. Seckinger crawled to a nearby New Jersey National Guard camp to summon help.

CURRENT ATTRACTION AT GRAND DRAWS COMMENT

Few motion pictures in local cinema history have created the controversy and discussion, or brought out so wide a variety of opinions as the current attraction at the Grand, titled "The Pace That Kills."

The film, produced by Willis Kent studios in Hollywood, was shown here for the first time, Wednesday, and will conclude its local engagement at the Grand tonight. It stars Lois January and Noel Madison.

"The Pace That Kills" is a new picture, only in the sense it was shown for the first time in Ohio a few weeks ago. The story—an expose of the dope racket—is a very vital one today, as Federal officials are constantly increasing their efforts to stamp out the "Hop-heads" and the sources of their supplies.

The local theatre manager stated Thursday that the film drew a wide variety of comments from patrons.

One woman, when leaving the matinee, remarked, "That was a terrible picture. It gave me the creeps. I think those kind of movies shouldn't be shown."

Another, accompanied by her husband and three daughters, told the manager, "I'm awfully glad you had this picture. It shows my daughters exactly what we've been trying to tell them."

Comment from male patrons, varied, too, but was along different lines, according to the Grand manager. One would remark, "That

EMPLOYEE HURT, THREE FIREMEN BURN AT BLAZE

SYRACUSE, N. Y., August 8.—Fred Staack, 40, a watchman, was feared to be dying of burns today and three firemen were being treated for severe injuries suffered while fighting a $500,000 blaze that swept the gasoline "tank city" on the north side of Syracuse.

The blaze spread through the large collection of gasoline storage tanks after the explosion of a large tank on the Richfield Oil Company property, according to firemen. All of the city's fire apparatus was pressed into service and finally succeeded by the use of chemicals in preventing the fast-spreading oil-fed fire from growing into major disaster.

President Theodore Roosevelt is said to have "put all he had into" singing, and no one could sing a patriotic song like him, or hear him sing it without being fired with enthusiasm.

BRITISH EMBASSY

Not for a generation has there been such a lively and effective staff at the British Embassy in Washington. Things have changed from the days of Sir Ronald Lindsay, when everything had to be "propaganda."

Lord Lothian started the change, but it has been broadened by the recent arrival of a corps of forthright young Britishers who are not career diplomats but recruits for war work. Today the Embassy has no time for the cookie-pushers.

Here are some of the men who have brought new blood to the Georgian mansion on Massachusetts Avenue:

JOHN G. FOSTER, first secretary; successful young barrister who left a highly lucrative practice in London to serve in Washington.

MICHAEL H. HUXLEY, first secretary, in charge of press relations; cousin of famed scientist Julian Huxley and famed novelist Aldous Huxley.

A. D. MARIS, first secretary, formerly attached to the Ministry of Economic Warfare.

REDVERS OPIE, second secretary, former Don of Economics at Magdalene College, Oxford, and lecturer at Harvard; his American wife is daughter of Harvard's economist Frank W. Taussig.

RICHARD F. HEATHCOAT AMORY, third secretary, successful young stockbroker, who spends most of his time with Americans in Washington. He represents the Ministry of Economic Warfare.

ALIEN EMPLOYEES

Chief job of the Census Bureau is to tabulate the population of the United States. But in these days of national defense, it is also acting as a clearing house regarding aliens, citizenship and other kindred questions.

Since the enactment of the various alien registration and anti-fifth column laws, Census officials have been receiving on an average of 6,000 inquiries a week from individuals seeking to establish their American citizenship, and from employers anxious to find out if they have any undesirable aliens on their rolls.

Some concerns have sent their entire payrolls to the Bureau for checking.

Most of the birth and citizenship queries are coming from airplane factories and other plants directly connected with defense production where aliens are now forbidden employment.

Census officials estimate that there are several million persons in the country whose birth records have never been filed with local authorities. To establish the citizenship of individuals of this group the Bureau uses old census reports obtained from parents.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

Handsome John Hamilton no longer is GOP National Chairman, but on the Committee's new letter-heads his name appears as prominently as his successor, Representative Joe Martin. Hamilton's new title is Executive Director . . .

Secretary of State Cordell Hull was so touched by the bipartisan welcome of members of Congress upon his return to Washington from the Havana Conference that tears streamed down his cheeks . . . Representative Charles Halleck, original Willkie booster and his nominator at the Philadelphia convention, is very much thumbs-down with Townsends.

Halleck was elected to the House in 1938 with Townsend backing, but latter opposed the old-age pension scheme. In retaliation Townsends tried to lick him for re-nomination this spring, but without success . . . William Knudsen, genial, soft-speaking National Defense Commissioner, works in shirt-sleeves and keeps his desk cleared of papers.

This republican hemisphere is daily getting better acquainted with exorality of all degrees of power and importance from the former Australian Empress Zita to the young folks of Luxembourg.

WILLKIE VOICES TWO ADDITIONS FOR HATCH ACT

G. O. P. Nominee Would Ask High Officials To List Assets

PROPOSALS SURPRISING

Fletcher's Interpretation Of Measure Fails To Win Approval

COLORADO SPRINGS, August 8.—Wendell Willkie stood fast today on two of the most amazing collateral proposals ever made by a presidential candidate.

What Willkie proposed, in effect, was a super-Hatch act which would:

1.—Force high officials of the federal government up to and including the president, to file statements of their personal assets with the secretary of state on taking and leaving office.

2.—Prevent members of the immediate families of such officials, including the President, from receiving compensation for any services performed for anybody in connection with the transactions of any department of the federal government.

In addition, Willkie promised that whether or not amendments of that nature were added to the Hatch Act, he would give the widest publicity to his own assets and those of members of his family if elected president and would file statements with the secretary of state.

"I am in favor of all amendments to the Hatch Act necessary to make it air-tight in carrying out both its provisions and its spirit," Willkie told a press conference and then launched into his double-barreled proposal.

Reporter Whistles

One reporter whistled as the proposal was made and the candidate grinned, obviously enjoying the effect.

The Hatch Act has been one of Willkie's pet themes and he did not appear to enjoy the publicity given Henry P. Fletcher's interpretation of its terms which, if followed, would have permitted the raising of a campaign fund, practically unlimited.

His first reaction was to announce that he had not read the opinion given by Fletcher, who is counsel for the Republican national committee, but that it was his intent to keep campaign expenditures within $2,500,000. The Hatch Act limit is $3,000,000.

Although Willkie inferentially disclaimed the Fletcher opinion it was immediately attacked by Attorney General Robert Jackson, who suggested that the Republicans were seeking to defeat its purpose through seeking out loopholes.

Willkie had no comment on that but his new proposal—that he is all for making the act air-tight—apparently is his answer.

The idea of an accounting seems to have been lurking in his mind in nebulous form for some time. At Philadelphia, before his nomination, he was invited to appear before the Texas delegation and one delegate asked him frankly and flatly about his assets. Willkie promptly retorted that he would be willing to lay a financial statement against one made by President Roosevelt.

Increases Refused

He also told his questioner that he was paid $75,000 a year as the president of Commonwealth and Southern Corporation and had twice refused salary increases because he didn't believe any man in private industry should get more than the president of the United States.

After disposing of his proposal for amendments to the Hatch Act, Willkie announced more new business—that meetings with former President Herbert Hoover and Alf M. Landon, the 1936 Republican nominee, would definitely take place next week.

Landon will be in Colorado Springs for lunch on Tuesday and the meeting with Hoover will be in Denver, probably on Wednesday. The former president is en route to Montana for a fishing trip.

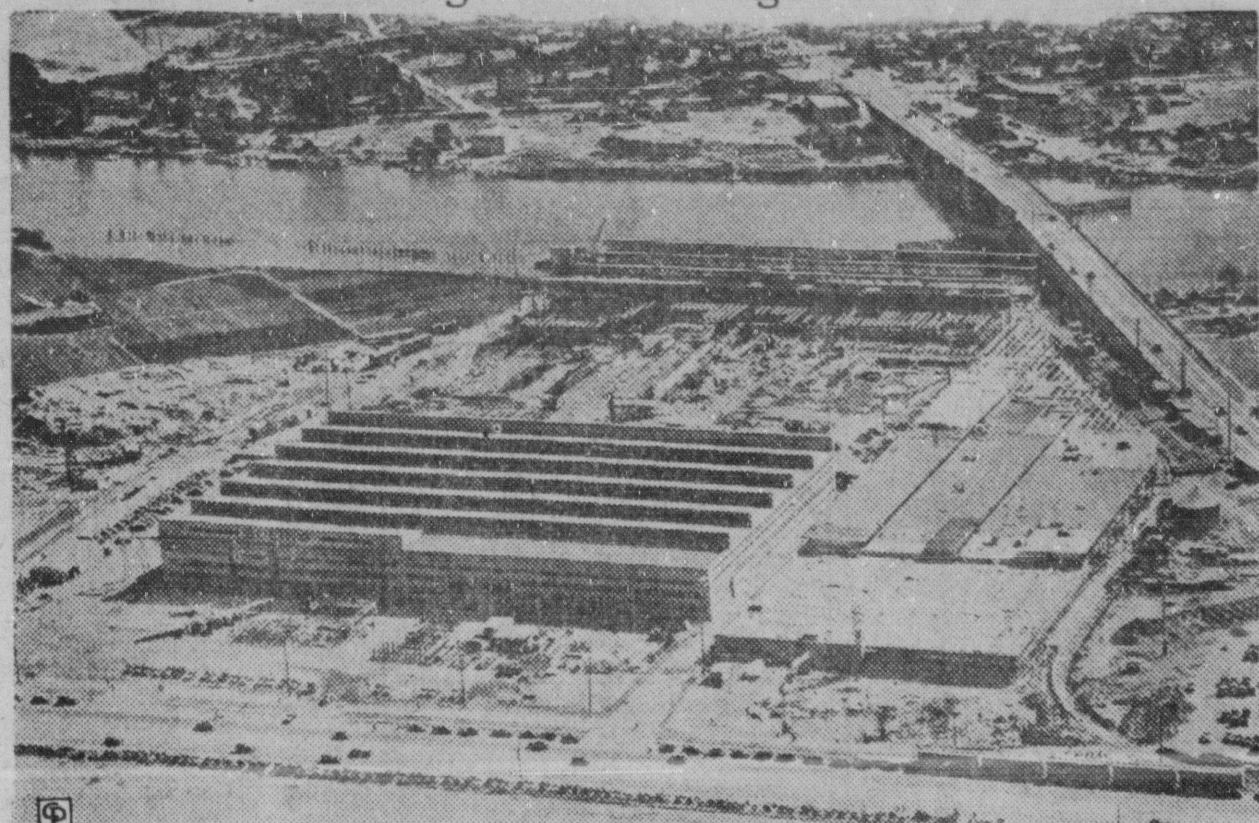

Willkie said he had no particular questions to take up either with Hoover or Landon, but had planned to meet them before delivering his acceptance speech.

FOUR INJURED AS PLANE CRASHES AT NEWARK, N. J.

NEWARK, N. J., August 8.—Three men and an attractive blonde were in St. James Hospital today with injuries suffered when their plane crashed near Newark airport on a flight from Williamsport, Pa.

One of the injured passengers, identified as W. R. Hopkins, 71, of New York replied negatively when asked by a nurse whether he was the former city manager of Cleveland.

Hopkins and Theodore Nagel, 58, an engineer, had spent yesterday in Williamsport on business and chartered the plane of Mathew Seckinger, 31, to return to New York. Seckinger, it was stated, invited a friend, Harriet Neff, 21, along for the ride.

The plane crashed in the marshes about 300 yards from Newark airport. Seckinger crawled to a nearby New Jersey National Guard camp to summon help.

U. S. POSITION OPEN

CURRENT ATTRACTION AT GRAND DRAWS COMMENT

Few motion pictures in local cinema history have created the controversy and discussion, or brought out so wide a variety of opinions as the current attraction at the Grand, titled "The Pace That Kills."

The film, produced by Willis Kent studios in Hollywood, was shown here for the first time, Wednesday, and will conclude its local engagement at the Grand tonight. It stars Lois January and Noel Madison.

"The Pace That Kills" is a new picture, only in the sense it was shown for the first time in Ohio a few weeks ago. The story—an expose of the dope racket—is a very vital one today, as Federal officials are constantly increasing their efforts to stamp out the "Hop-heads" and the sources of their supplies.

The local theatre manager stated Thursday that the film drew a wide variety of comments from patrons. One woman, when leaving the matinee, remarked, "That was a terrible picture. It gave me the creeps. I think those kind of movies shouldn't be shown."

Another, accompanied by her husband and three daughters, told the manager, "I'm awfully glad you had this picture. It shows my daughters exactly what we've been trying to tell them."

Comment from male patrons, varied, too, but was along different lines, according to the Grand manager. One would remark, "That

EMPLOYEE HURT, THREE FIREMEN BURN AT BLAZE

SYRACUSE, N. Y., August 8.—Fred Staack, 40, a watchman, was feared to be dying of burns today and three firemen were being treated for severe injuries suffered while fighting a $500,000 blaze that swept the gasoline "tank city" on the north side of Syracuse.

The blaze spread through the large collection of gasoline storage tanks after the explosion of a large tank on the Richfield Oil Company property, according to firemen. All of the city's fire apparatus was pressed into service and finally succeeded by the use of chemicals in preventing the fast-spreading oil-fed fire from growing into major disaster.

COUNCIL AND ELECTRIC COMPANY OFFICIALS TO MEET AUGUST 21

LONG ARGUMENT OVER CONTRACT MAY BE ENDED

Settlement Of Controversy May Provide Rebate For City Customers

BUDGET QUESTION NEARS

September 11 Selected For Meeting To Fix Sewage Rates For Industry

Possibility of a solution to the present light rate litigation between the Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Company and the city of Circleville was cited Wednesday night when Council voted to meet with light company officials August 21 in an effort to solve the controversy.

The date was set after Solicitor Joe Adkins told councilmen that light company officials had informed him they were ready to meet with the council at any time to consider the matter. Councilmen said the meeting might not only result in a settlement of the pending suit, but also in the establishment of a new street lighting ordinance.

A suit with the light company developed several years ago when council passed a ten-year light ordinance reducing rates in the city. When opponents of the ordinance, objecting to the ten year clause of the contract, circulated a referendum petition asking that the measure be placed on the ballot, the light company filed an injunction against W. J. Graham, then mayor, to prevent the issue from coming to a vote. The company received a temporary injunction, and Circleville light consumers are still paying rates established before the passage of the 10 year ordinance.

A solution may bring a rebate to light consumers for the difference in rates between the old and the ten-year ordinance, councilmen hinted.

To Prepare Budget

Council decided to meet as a committee next Wednesday evening to prepare for the budget commission its budget for the coming year.

They also established September 11 beginning at 1 p. m. as the date to meet with representatives of Circleville's leading industries to work out fair and permanent sewage disposal rates for the companies. A temporary four-month ordinance regarding rates, passed by council July 19, 1939, expired last fall and since that time no ordinance has been in effect. Temporary rates were set under the old ordinance so that adequate data could be collected to determine permanent fair and equitable charges. The four industries concerned are the Container Corporation, the Winorr Canning Company, the Esmeralda Canning Company and the Pickaway Dairy Company.

Barber Ordinance Read

The barber shop ordinance, regulating opening and closing hours for Circleville barber shops, was given its second reading, although Circleville barbers yet have inserted no definite closing time into the measure.

Service Director Leonard Morgan reported to the council that Charles Jewell, of Route 3, Circleville, had expressed his appreciation for repairs made to his cellar wall. Councilmen instructed the service director to make the necessary repairs to the Jewell residence, after Mr. Jewell had told council that a city sewer, constructed too close to his dwelling, had overflowed and washed out the foundation under his house.

Pickaway County farmers are now beginning to sign for the 1941 AAA wheat program. County Conservation officials reported Wednesday. Of the 1,912 wheat farms in the county, 406 farms have been visited by township AAA committeemen, and 312, or 77 percent have been signed, it was reported.

Farmers desiring to sign with the 1941 wheat program must do so before August 31.

Meanwhile, AAA Chairman John Boggs reported that the county office was continuing to

TRUMAN WINNER IN CLOSE RACE WITH GOV. STARK

ST. LOUIS, August 8—Missouri's closest election contest in almost 20 years appeared to have been decided today with Senator Harry S. Truman the winner over Gov. Lloyd C. Stark in the race for Democratic nomination to the U. S. senate in Tuesday's primary.

Although the official tabulation may be needed to certify the result, practically complete unofficial returns today indicated that Truman defeated Gov. Stark by about 7,000 votes. The count from 4,407 of the state's 4,446 precincts gave: Truman, 263,128; Stark, 256,335.

Maurice M. Milligan, former U. S. district attorney, the third senatorial candidate, was about 100,000 votes behind the leaders.

It was considered unlikely the few scattered precincts yet to be counted would affect the totals enough to change the standings.

The Republican senatorial nomination was won by Manuel H. Davis of Kansas City. The Democratic gubernatorial nominee was St. Louis Excise Commissioner Lawrence McDaniel, and the Republican nominee for governor was Forrest C. Donnel, St. Louis attorney.

BODIES OF TWO BOYS DROWNED JULY 21 FOUND

CHICAGO, August 8—A strange mystery confronted authorities today with recovery of the bodies of two youths who disappeared while sailing on Lake Michigan last July 21.

The victims were Robert Wolf, 15, and Ernest Hemboldt, 23. Both bodies were washed ashore. Wolf and Hemboldt set out in an 18-foot sailboat, which was found the same day by coast-guardsmen. Its portable radio was turned on, and all aboard appeared in order.

Today, police said neither body bore marks of violence, and although an inquest was scheduled, little hope was held that any light would be shed on the mystery of what happened to the youths.

COUNCIL AND ELECTRIC COMPANY OFFICIALS TO MEET AUGUST 21

LONG ARGUMENT OVER CONTRACT MAY BE ENDED

Settlement Of Controversy May Provide Rebate For City Customers

BUDGET QUESTION NEARS

September 11 Selected For Meeting To Fix Sewage Rates For Industry

Possibility of a solution to the present light rate litigation between the Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Company and the city of Circleville was cited Wednesday night when Council voted to meet with light company officials August 21 in an effort to solve the controversy.

The date was set after Solicitor Joe Adkins told councilmen that light company officials had informed him they were ready to meet with the council at any time to consider the matter. Councilmen said the meeting might not only result in a settlement of the pending suit, but also in the establishment of a new street lighting ordinance.

A suit with the light company developed several years ago when council passed a ten-year light ordinance reducing rates in the city. When opponents of the ordinance, objecting to the ten year clause of the contract, circulated a referendum petition asking that the measure be placed on the ballot, the light company filed an injunction against W. J. Graham, then mayor, to prevent the issue from coming to a vote. The company received a temporary injunction, and Circleville light consumers are still paying rates established before the passage of the 10 year ordinance.

A solution may bring a rebate to light consumers for the difference in rates between the old and the ten-year ordinance, councilmen hinted.

To Prepare Budget

Council decided to meet as a committee next Wednesday evening to prepare for the budget commission its budget for the coming year.

They also established September 11 beginning at 1 p. m. as the date to meet with representatives of Circleville's leading industries to work out fair and permanent sewage disposal rates for the companies. A temporary four-month ordinance regarding rates, passed by council July 19, 1939, expired last fall and since that time no ordinance has been in effect. Temporary rates were set under the old ordinance so that adequate data could be collected to determine permanent fair and equitable charges. The four industries concerned are the Container Corporation, the Winor Canning Company, the Esmeralda Canning Company and the Pickaway Dairy Company.

Barber Ordinance Read

The barber shop ordinance, regulating opening and closing hours for Circleville barber shops, was given its second reading, although Circleville barbers yet have inserted no definite closing time into the measure.

Service Director Leonard Morgan reported to the council that Charles Jewell, of Route 3, Circleville, had expressed his appreciation for repairs made to his cellar wall. Councilmen instructed the service director to make the necessary repairs to the Jewell residence, after Mr. Jewell had told council that a city sewer, constructed too close to his dwelling, had overflowed and washed out the foundation under his house.
